SLAIN MAN'S SON SAYS HE AND WIFE OFTEN QUARRELED

Nine-Year-Old Lilliendahl Boy Understood to Have Added That Rows Were Over Third Person.

NEVER MISTREATED, WIDOW DECLARES

New Jersey Authorities Not Ready to Make Charge Though Evidence Doesn't Help Her Story.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Sept. 23.—While State and county investigators continued to hand out meager scraps of information, most of which do not agree with the murder story told by Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, it was privately admitted that there was no immediate intention to accuse anyone of the killing a week ago of Dr. William Lilliendahl, her husband. Lilliendahl was shot to death in his automobile on a road near here. His widow, who was with him, says two robbers shot him.

The Atlantic County grand jury began its sessions yesterday, but the Lilliendahl case was not presented to it for consideration.

While Mrs. Lilliendahl was talking to reporters yesterday, telling a story of her life, detectives said her son, Alfred, 8 years old, had told them his mother and the doctor quarreled frequently.

"My mother often came to my bedside at night," the boy is alleged to have said. "I would ask her what was the matter and she would say that she and daddy had been quarreling." The boy is understood to have added that his parents were quarreling over a person whose name has been mentioned in the murder investigation. It was also stated that Andrew J. Rider, owner of the cranberry bog at the end of the road upon which the murder was committed, had told detectives he had discovered a woman's footprints at the edge of the swamp.

Cranberry Bog Searched. Careful search of a patch of underbrush along one side of the road at the murder scene failed to disclose the revolver which police had expected to find; neither did it disclose a packet of letters which, according to rumors, was buried nearby.

The arrest predicted by Chief of Police G. C. Ward of Vineland failed to materialize, and the only development reported in the office of Prosecutor "Petty" in Atlantic City was the volunteering of a new witness "to tell something."

Meanwhile Mrs. Lilliendahl met reporters in her Vineland home. Alternately calm and weeping, she detailed the story of her life with the physician.

At the end of the interview, one of the reporters asked bluntly: "Did you kill Dr. Lilliendahl?"

Mrs. Gay Sommers, a friend, who sat by the widow's side throughout the interview, cried out: "That question is unfair!"

"Yes, it's absolutely unfair!" Mrs. Lilliendahl declared. And so the interview was ended.

Her Life "An Open Book."

"My life has been an open book," she told her questioners. After detailing the varying family fortunes in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and finally in New York, she continued: "Dr. Lilliendahl lived on the first floor of our apartment building in New York. We both had dogs and they were very much alike. One day I saw him apparently putting on a leash on my dog, and I spoke to him about it. He pointed out my dog across the street, and we began talking about dogs."

"Later, when I developed a throat ailment, I asked the telephone operator to call a doctor, and she sent Dr. Lilliendahl. Shortly after that we were married—in November, 1915."

"No person ever lived the life I have," she said. "Dr. Lilliendahl liked an outdoor life and I used to drive him around in the automobile. My life in New Jersey was one drive after another. I estimate that we drove 41,000 miles. He took most of my time and our son, Alfred, took the rest so that I had no social life whatsoever."

Pair Collected Antiques. "Our hobbies were antiques. I collected rare glasses, and the Doctor liked stamps and Indian arrowheads. We drove from one auction to another." The doctor specialized in treating drug addicts. Asked about the charges of anti-narcotics law violations which had been preferred against her husband, Mrs. Lilliendahl said she understood they had been nolle prossed by the Government.

"Did the Doctor mistreat you?" she was asked.

"Never," she replied. "If all men were as good as the dear old Doctor, this world would be a better place to live in."

Mrs. Lilliendahl is 42 years old. The doctor was 75.

GETS SIX YEARS FOR $20,000,000 OIL MAIL FRAUD

B. Frank Wood of Muskogee, Ok., Also Fined $10,000 on Plea in Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22.—B. Frank Wood of Muskogee, Ok., who with his three brothers was alleged by the Government to have led promotions in which $20,000,000 was extracted from investors, pleaded guilty yesterday and was sentenced to six years imprisonment in Leavenworth Federal penitentiary. He also was fined $10,000.

Wood's brothers are resisting removal from Oklahoma where they reside. He entered his plea of guilty on 11 counts of using the mails to defraud. Three other defendants, who were associates of Wood in the promotion of the Invader Oil Syndicate plans in Oklahoma and Texas, also pleaded guilty and were sentenced to a year and a day each. The sentences of these three then were suspended for two years. They were J. L. Nours and L. C. Boyd, also of Muskogee, and E. S. Ogilvy of Chicago.

Wood also was ordered to turn over all the properties of the Invader Oil promotions to the trustees who were to be named later.

FIGHTS INCREASE IN SENTENCE

Indiana Dry Pleads Action Would Be Unconstitutional. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 22.—A motion asking the Supreme Court to dismiss a recent motion by Attorney-General Gilliom to increase the contempt sentence of E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Antislavery League, was filed yesterday by counsel for Shumaker. Defense counsel pleaded that Gilliom's motion was unconstitutional. Shumaker was sentenced to 60 days on the State Penitentiary and fined $250, following his conviction, with Jesse E. Martin, the league's attorney, of publishing contemptuous criticisms of several Supreme Court judges.

3. Long-Distance Accumulators—As telescopes bring distant objects clearly into view so the Crosley accumulators produce the volume of far-away signals so they seem like local programs.
4. Volume Control Minus Distortion—Whether you want "brass band" power for dancing or soft and mellow reproduction, the Crosley sets a high standard of controlled tone quality.
5. Illuminated Dial—No need to break the "mood of music" with a sudden glare of light for tuning, because the Crosley illuminated dial may be plainly read in the dark.
6. The Single Knob—Simplifies tuning for ordinary reception of local and super-powered stations.
7. Beautiful Cabinet—Best of equipment. An inspection of the beautiful cabinet makes this price seem impossible; such rich woodwork, the full-tone, enclosed cone speaker, and the spacious compartment for batteries and power units—check off every item of equipment. At such savings you might expect second-hand accessories—but not in this offer. The list reads like a Radio Hall of Fame!

YOUR ST. LOUIS How Well Do You Know It?

A little more than thirty-five years ago the firm of C. F. BLANKE & COMPANY started in the tea, coffee and spice business at 12 South Second street. The chief assets were ambition, energy, a knowledge of the business and a following of C. F. BLANKE & COMPANY. About two years later they incorporated under the state laws of Missouri and C. F. BLANKE TEA & COFFEE COMPANY was established—the business growing steadily. Ultimately these three buildings were inadequate and a new building was erected at 7th and Clark avenues.

A few years later a department to manufacture and pack coffee was added. This became a separate company, known as the St. Louis Tea and Coffee Works—a business which grew at rapid pace.

About this time a separate company was organized to take over the entire manufacturing department—now the Blanke-Heath Extract and Preserving Company. Five years ago C. F. Blanke bought the five-story building at 14th and Papin streets with a floor space of 240,000 square feet. It is now occupied by the C. F. Blanke Tea and Coffee Company and the St. Louis Tea and Coffee Works.

Approximately fifteen years ago the C. F. BLANKE TEA & COFFEE COMPANY developed processes for manufacturing soluble coffee and soluble tea. A recently gained BLANKE HEALTHY COFFEE & TEA CORPORATION now markets the soluble coffee and tea, receiving orders from parts of the United States and many foreign countries.

Every day this space will be devoted to some one particular manufacturing plant or industry which is contributing to the dynamic growth of St. Louis.

POINCARÉ ASSUMES CHARGE OF FRENCH TARIFF POLICY
Premier Calls for All Papers on Subject of Relations With the United States.
PARIS, Sept. 23.—Premier Poincaré has taken charge of Franco-American tariff relations personally.

He had not done this during the earlier stages of the exchange of notes, his idea then being that it was a matter for the Ministers of Commerce and Foreign Affairs to deal with.
Now Poincaré has sent for all the papers. Some of the most important of these, apart from the American reply, is considered to be the letter from Paul Claudel, Ambassador to the United States, transmitting the American Government's point of view of the fullest extent.
There is no indication here yet as to the tenor of the French reply although some disappointment is felt at the tone of the American answer.

LEGAL HEIRS SUE TO BREAK WILL IN $72,000 ESTATE

Brother and Two Nieces of Mrs. Francis R. Smith Allege She Was Not of Sound Mind.

Three legal heirs of Mrs. Frances R. Smith, widow of William Smith, yesterday filed suit in the Circuit Court to set aside her will in which she disposed of an estate inventoried at $71,942 to various Catholic charities and institutions.

The plaintiffs—Samuel Dillon, her brother, and two nieces, Adele Brittain and Memie Pasquier—allege that at the time Mrs. Smith made her will, Jan. 5, 1922, she was not of sound mind and therefore was "unable to appreciate the just deserts of those who were the natural objects of her bounty."

They further allege that she was aged, infirm and laboring under delusions produced by mental unsoundness. Neither they, nor Richard Warren, a nephew, who were her only lawful heirs, they say, were left anything in the will. Petitioners seek to have the whole estate divided among them and Warren, who is named as a defendant in the suit, not having joined in the will contest.

Mrs. Smith died June 24 last. For several years before her death she had been a patient in St. Vincent's Institution. Under the terms of her will a total of $18,500 was bequeathed in specific bequests to Catholic organizations and the remainder was divided in equal parts among the Little Sisters of the Poor, 2209 Hebert street; Mount St. Rose Hospital, 1901 South Broadway, and the Roman Catholic Theological Seminary in St. Louis County.

Among the larger specific bequests $5000 each was bequeathed to St. Anthony's Church and St. Mary's Infirmary, $2000 for masses for herself and husband and $1000 each to St. Mary's Orphan Asylum and St. Joseph's Male Orphan Asylum. The various beneficiaries and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., as executor under the will, are named as defendants.

In July, 1924, Mrs. Smith was adjudged of unsound mind by a jury in the Probate Court.

GEN. L. M. BRETT, WORLD WAR COMMANDER, DIES

He Served Also in Indian Campaigns Under Miles and in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Brigadier-General Lloyd M. Brett, retired, died today at Walter Reed Army Hospital of heart disease.

Gen. Brett, who first served in the army as a Lieutenant under Gen. Nelson A. Miles in the Indian campaign, ended his active service as commander of a brigade of the Eightieth Division in France, and in that command he made a brilliant record. He was complimented by name in official orders for the success of his command in several encounters which helped to break down the German resistance towards the end of the World War.

Gen. Brett participated in the Santiago fight, and was selected to command the 100 men picked to receive the surrender of Gen. Toral and his army. He also served in the Philippine campaign.

After the World War, Gen. Brett reverted to the rank of Colonel, but an act of Congress restored him to his war-time position in the army lists. He was born at Dead River, Me., in 1856.

ONLY ONE FOURTH OF ILLINOIS CORN EXPECTED TO MATURE

State University Figures Prove Very Discouraging to Farmers.

By the Associated Press.
URBANA, Ill., Sept. 23.—Hopes for the Illinois corn crop received a setback yesterday when figures obtained from the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, indicated that only one-fourth of the crop could possibly mature at a normal frost date. The figures revealed that a second fourth to 15 days late, while 50 per cent already is ruined. Weather Bureau reports show that the average killing frost date in Illinois is between Oct. 10 and 15.

The terrific heat in the first two weeks of September was of little value to the crop, J. C. Hackelman, crop extension specialist, said. "The damage was caused by the cool weather of July and August," he pointed out, "and while the hot September weather would help slightly, it could by no means repair the damage done during the early summer."

"There is hardly a cornfield in Illinois that would not suffer heavy damage tonight if a killing frost occurred," Dr. W. L. Barison, head of the Department of Agronomy, said. "While corn in the Western states may be in fairly good shape, crop conditions in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio are decidedly poor."

Corn in Northern Illinois was reported as slightly ahead of that in the southern and central sections.

Cleared of Income Tax Fraud

C. J. Steinberg Acquitted by Directed Verdict on Retrial.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Charles J. Steinberg, once sentenced to pay a $10,000 fine and serve five years in the Atlanta penitentiary for perjury and filing a false income tax return for 1921, was acquitted yesterday in a directed verdict on retrial.

Federal Judge Burns directed the verdict after Steinberg's father had testified he owned all or part of the companies from which his son was accused of having received profits which he concealed.

Holds Safety Contest Lead

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MOBERLY, Mo., Sept. 23.—The Western Division of the Wabash Railway Co., with headquarters here, continues to hold first place in the company's safety contest.

Seven men have been injured on the western division since the first of the year, the report shows. Last year 12 men were injured during the first eight months. All other divisions of the road have suffered more than twice as many injuries as the western division, which has twice won the company's safety trophy.

BIRGER AND FIVE AIDS FACE NEW INDICTMENT

Madison County (Ill.) True Bill Replaces Old One on Pocatopas Robbery.

GREENVILLE, Ill., Sept. 23.—The Bond County grand jury today returned an indictment charging Charlie Birger and five other Southern Illinois gangsters—Art

Newman, Connie Ritter, Perry Bilyeu, Frank Schrader and "Ok-lahoma Slim" McGuire—with complicity in the $10,000 holdup of the Bond County State Bank at Pocatopas, Ill., Nov. 20 last. Bond for each was fixed at $70,000. The indictment replaces one voted last May which included the name of Freddie Wooten and omitted the names of Birger and Schrader. The new indictment is based on a confession made by Newman to C. E. Hollis, president of the bank, during the Joe Adams murder trial at Benton, which resulted in a death sentence for Birger and life sentence for Newman. Newman said the bank holdup was planned by Birger on receipt of a tip from Bilyeu, a resident of Greenville. Newman said he waited in an automobile while Ritter, Schrader and McGuire went into the bank. As the robbers drove away, they were fired upon by citizens, and Newman was wounded in the left hand.

The Bond County grand jury also returned 23 indictments, charging embezzlement, against Charles T. Myers, former City Clerk of Greenville, who has admitted a $12,000 shortage in his accounts. Bail was fixed at $12,000. An indictment returned last May was quashed today, as the grand jury which voted it had been selected improperly.

PROFIT BY INSURANCE
TAXED AS INCOMEFederal Appeals Board Holds
St. Louis Firm Liable to Levy on $7720.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 2023 Wyatt Building, WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—The Excelsior-Lauder Co., 2325 Texas avenue, St. Louis, made a book profit of $22,384.53 by the fire which destroyed the Excelsior Laundry building May 23, 1921, according to a decision yesterday by the Federal Board of Tax Appeals that the company erred when it failed to include the insurance gain as part of its gross income in its tax return. The board, however, allowed the company to deduct from this amount $14,664.05, which was spent for new machinery.

After the fire, the Excelsior company, which was owned by George A. Burley, B. T. Kearns and Charles B. Schaum, continued its operations in the Leader plant, owned by Burley and Kearns. Schaum bought a third interest in the Leader organization and the two companies were run as nearly as practicable as one business organization. In December, 1921, the two companies were consolidated.

The board's decision disclosed that $86,513.04 was paid in insurance to the Excelsior-Lauder group under the following heads: Customers' bundle insurance, approximately $26,000; premium insurance on bundles, $1000; use and occupancy insurance, $8720.48; machinery and fixtures, $52,792.56. At the hearing the laundry company abandoned its claim relating to the deduction of the premium insurance and the use of occupancy payments. This left $14,664.05 in controversy.

Insurance Above Book Value. "These payments were mostly paid in July, 1921," the decision says. "The bundle insurance all went to customers for laundry work which had been in the building at the time of the fire. The policies were written and losses paid on this account. The use and occupancy insurance was for deprivation of laundry facilities during a stated number of days."

"On the date of the fire the book value of the property destroyed was $22,384.53 less than the insurance so paid. This was all expended for new machinery of a character similar or related in service to that destroyed which was installed in a new building begun by the two companies and completed by the consolidated company."

If the Excelsior company itself had expended the gain for new machinery, there would be no question as to the allowance of the deduction, the opinion stated, citing section 234 (2) (14) of the 1921 revenue act to the effect that if property is involuntarily converted into cash as result of a fire, the taxpayer can use proceeds to acquire property of a similar character.

Money Spent on Machinery. "The money derived from the fire loss was all invested in new machinery which was installed with due expedition in the new building, the erection of which was paid for from money borrowed by the two companies on their joint note," the decision continues. "The interests of the two companies were identical in that they were both owned by the same stockholders, each having a like interest with each of the two owners and the officers of the two companies were identical. Under such circumstances it would be a far cry to hold that the methods resorted to in the expenditure of the gain resulting from the excess of the insurance over the book value of the machinery and equipment destroyed were such as to deprive the petitioner of the benefits of section 234 of the revenue act of 1921. We see nothing in the methods adopted by the two companies destructive of the property rights of either."

"The property was involuntarily converted into cash as a result of its destruction. The petitioner proceeded forthwith in good faith to expend and did expend the proceeds of the conversion in the acquisition of other property of a character similar or related in service or use to the property so converted. Neither the methods followed by it, nor the results obtained were in contravention of the regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue under this section."

INDICTED FOR KILLING BY KICK DURING FIGHT

Manslaughter True Bill Accuses
 E. F. Fremont in Death of William Rutherford.

A manslaughter indictment for death following a kick in the abdomen during a fight was returned yesterday against Edward
 F. Fremont of 4253 Gano avenue.
 He is alleged to have kicked William Rutherford, 50, a painter, when Rutherford attempted to make peace in a quarrel between Fremont and other painters. Rutherford died of peritonitis on Aug.

A first-degree murder indictment was returned against Percy Wallace as one of two Negroes who fatally slugged Mason G. Adams, 40, of 5565 Maffitt avenue, on the night of Oct. 23, 1926, when Adams was walking near the Colleum. Leonard Brown already has pleaded guilty and has been sentenced to life imprisonment.

A similar indictment was returned against William Moseley, 52, a Negro, 1820 Division street, in connection with the fatal shooting of his wife and Mr. and Mrs.
 Marcus Bass Sept. 10 last in Bass' store, 1821 Division. Moseley has said he thought his wife unfaithful. Stray shots killed Mr. and Mrs. Bass.

Joseph Demel of 8978A Hall's Ferry road, driver of an automobile which struck a piece of digging machinery on North Broadway, Aug. 14 last, killing Demel's companions, George Pfeister of 725 Pence avenue and Arthur Klorer of 4300 College avenue, was indicted for manslaughter.

TEXAS FIRMS' SALE OF OIL LEASES HALTED IN MISSOURI
 Blue Sky Order Issued Against the H. R. Harris Interests of Houston.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
 JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 23.—
 Favorable odds of 100 to 1 offered prospective Missouri investors by promoters of an undeveloped Texas oil lease—with well phrased qualifications—were reversed today on the "blue sky" department books to 100 to 1 against the promotion by Commissioner F. T.
 Stockard, who ordered the H. R.
 Harris Offshore Lease interests of Houston, Tex., to abandon its stock selling campaign in Missouri.
 "Only about one in 1000 promotions such as this one ever make good and give the investor a return of his money," Stockard said, directing the promoters to make no further attempts to sell interests in Missouri under penalty of prosecution for violation of the blue sky law. He also issued a warning to the public against purchase of the stock or interests. The company has never qualified in Missouri.

The prospectus issued by the Harris company told prospective investors that an investment of $10 in a one-fiftieth hundredth interest in a lease "may return you $1000 cash in not more than four months." Merely to save time, it was stated, a certificate for the "interest" was enclosed, already made out to the prospect, who was urged to rush his remittance. The company proposed to drill an oil well on a tract of land in Nacogdoches County, Tex., and to raise funds by selling the interests in a lease on a tract of 100 acres near that on which the well was to be sunk.

Former Defeats Mrs. Fraser in Great Match, 1 Up. Latter Eliminates Ada McKenzie, 2 and 1.

By the Associated Press. GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Miss Maureen Orcutt, Hawthorne, N. J., 20-year-old Metropolitan champion, today entered the final round of the United States women's golf championship tournament by defeating Miss Ada McKenzie, champion of Canada, 2 up and 1 to play.

AMERICAN LEGION MEN IN FRANCE HAPPY OVER FIGHT VERDICT

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Sept. 23.—American Legionnaires were proud today to announce the victory of Gene Tunney, the former marine, over Jack Dempsey, a former prizefighter, in the seventh round of the fight which closed the festivities of the Legion convention. Others had awaited it all night at the Legion club, where the fight was being broadcast.

You've heard his voice—do you know his face?

SPORTS writers have time to decide just how to word their messages. Major J. Andrew White, the dean of broadcasters and vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, has developed the remarkably quick-thinking ability to tell, and tell well, every exciting thing that happens without a moment's time for preparation.

SPORTS SALAD

Scratch One. We had a quite exclusive tip on Dempsey vs. Tunney. And on the coming championship.

To bet a wad of money.

So after hunting high and low for someone who would take us.

We wagered quite a chunk of dough.

That Jack would win the fracas.

Gene.

We are no sure-thing gamblers. However you construe it.

But, we will tell you now and here.

Jack.

We knew that Gene could do it!

Gene.

Pro Snakes.

Those snakes out at our new reptile house have proved to be such crawling cards that it is rumored C. C. Pyle has his eye on them.

"Cold Cash" has quite a way with him but he would have to be quite a snake charmer to wear our rattlers, pythons and cobras away from the amateur fold.

In case they did turn pro all the amateur snakes in the country would gather around and hiss their act.

We kick on paying 65 cents to see a show that runs from 11 a. m. until 11 p. m., and then pay 40 bucks to see a show billed to run 30 minutes and may be over in less than three minutes. For such is human nature.

We trust Mrs. Kellogg of Hannibal, Mo., will forgive us for saying that the Cardinals and Cubs thanked Judge Landis for the compliment in inviting them to a pennant conference.

as long as the Red Birds remain within the mathematical limits of pennant possibilities we should refrain from casting any doubt on their ability to carry on to a glorious and successful conclusion.

How True.

Furthermore, a four-game at this stage of the race while formidable is not so all-fired impressive that it warrants paying off on the Pirates. A lead like that can be wiped out in one series. Sic 'em, Rogers!

If we had been better fortified against the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune the Red Birds would be so far out in front right now that they would be but a mere speck in the distance to the other contenders.

But next year is another year. We'll start out with about five unbreakable shortstops and as many bomb-proof outfielders as the law allows and make a joke out of the old pennant race.

Phil Ball, owner of the Browns, flew to Chicago in his airplane.

"The Spirit of the Browns," to witness the fight. Looks like first division.

GENE TUNNEY PROVES GREATER CHAMPION, DECLARES WRAY

sheer pluck as Tunney pecked away at his eyes and occasionally shook him heavily with that Carpenter-like overhand right punch.

And when the final gong rang it was evident to those close enough to observe that another round would have seen the finish of the one-time "Nine".

Dempsey Great in Defeat.

One cannot belittle Dempsey in this defeat. There still are those today who will say that Dempsey was robbed of victory; that Tunney was given a count of more than 14 seconds.

But the official fact is that Tunney was such a good boxer and such a resourceful general that he came back from the very brink of defeat to win a clean-cut victory.

Dempsey's camp today is seething hot over what it thinks was a bad break at the hands of the official. In the dressing room last night as they wiped his face and polished him up for his street appearance, many friends and newspaper men tried to tell him that he got the worst of the break.

"Forget It," Says Dempsey.

"Forget It," said Jack, "it's all in the game. Tunney fought a great fight and don't I know it?"

So passes Jack Dempsey, the greatest purveyor of his inches and possibly the greatest puncher of all time. If there is one man who could rival Jack in sheer velocity and impact of punch, it was a gray haired old man who slipped into Dempsey's dressing room after the fight to shake hands with Jack—James I. Jeffries.

BRITISH TEAM WINS SEMI-FINAL MATCH IN OPEN POLO MEET

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The British Army-in-India polo team yesterday won its semifinal match in the open championship when it defeated Stephen Sanford's Hurricanes, 8 goals to 7.

The British team consisted of Captains George and Denning, Maj. Atkinson and Lieut. Gulness. Capt. Roark, who played with the British in the international series, was at No. 3 for the Hurricanes.

Quite some "uncher" himself. "I thought you had a right to win Jack and it surely looked like you might have got a long count."

But Dempsey just smiled and shook hands.

Beyond almost any reasonable doubt Dempsey is through with the fight game. There is talk that he will be sent to England to fight where he has never been seen in a real battle. But Dempsey will not go. He is in love with his wife—and his wife wants him to quit boxing.

That counts ten on the most spectacular career in the history of the modern heavyweight fight world.

Dempsey was a good fighter last night, but not the Dempsey of his youth. However, he cannot fall back on the alibi of bad condition.

One has heard much of Dempsey's popularity. There was some evidence of it in the ringside betting. But it was apparent when Jack slipped into the ring with hardly a handclap and certainly no ovation.

He wore a white flannel bathrobe and was in no exaggerated way that he really looked as good as he has ever looked in his life.

Otto Floto of Denver, who discovered Dempsey, took one look and then wished he had a bet down.

It was the champion who almost made Dempsey wait. In fact Tunney staged his entry with his retinue about 15 minutes after Jack and if the thought exists that Tunney is unpopular it can be dismissed. Tunney had plenty of clamor. It almost appeared that Dempsey and not Tunney was the unpopular fighter of the two.

The taping had all been done in the dressing room and when the men appeared in the ring all that remained was to slip the gloves over their bandaged hands. Left there remain any doubt that the hands of a fighter are carefully taken care of we may mention in passing that 26 feet of soft tape was wound about each hand of each fighter.

Dempsey was in good spirits. He did not look as if he had lost the fight. When the gong rang to start the opening round the greatest crowd that ever saw a prize fight was treated to something of a surprise. As told in the writer's column a few days ago, Dempsey has had the idea that he could dog Tunney into playing the part of the hero champion. Dempsey and his supporters have always believed that the man who brings the fight to Dempsey will get his in large, assorted socks—right to the chin. So Dempsey had schooled his mind to patience and fortitude. Also to staying away from Tunney.

Tunney Takes Initiative.

As he left his corner he started to circle Tunney's left hand. No rushing. No bobbing. No weaving. He walked around Tunney, who did some walking himself. Gene looked Jack over. He decided that two could play a waiting game and that he could play it a bit better than Jack. Presently the strange thing happened. Tunney was initiating the initiative. He led with his left. Then he sent in the old one-two. One on the nose, one on the jaw. Dempsey shook his head. One could almost feel him strain at the instruction of Mr. Flynn (his manager). But he stuck. He even did a "sty well."

For the first two rounds there wasn't much of anything. Two men remained clean and untouched. Tunney had landed a couple of one-two punches on Jack. No harm done.

In the third round Dempsey might even be said to have had a shade of the argument. Tunney was still feeling him out and trying to good Dempsey into pulling the usual tight stuff.

The fourth round passed. Tunney was touching up Dempsey and then in the fifth round Dempsey's reserve began to break up. He just could not play the passive part. The straight-up boxing disappeared. He began to bob and weave and throw punches.

No good with this Flynn stuff; time for Jack to sock. This strategy business goes for Tunney not for Dempsey. "Knock 'em dead, boy—that's the way I win 'em. And Jack began to throw them. In the fifth round he threw a real one. It hit Tunney on the head and it appeared for a moment that trouble was in the offing.

Dempsey Wins Only One Round.

But that Tunney is a fighter. He knows how to use his fragments and retreat. For first Dempsey could not get on the ropes until the seventh round—and don't think that Dempsey was taking the initiative up to that time. Throughout the entire 10 rounds it is doubtful if Dempsey had or deserved to be given more than one round—the seventh of course.

That was the crucial moment of the battle. Dempsey missed in this round one left lead that would have checked the whole show. As it was, this was the round that

The Fight by Rounds

By the Associated Press.

ROUND ONE.

The fight started at 10:07 p. m. Dempsey rushed a left lunge, falling into a clinch. Jack sent two left hooks to the ribs. In the clinch that followed, he clipped Gene four times with a right at the back of the head. They sparred cautiously. Tunney feinting for openings, while Tunney laid back. Gene snapped a left to Dempsey's chin and followed with a solid right smash to the chin. Jack fell into a clinch, taking another right to the head as he went in. Jack dropped a left on Tunney's body. Jack backed away, while the champion followed him across the ring with a volley of left and right hooks to the head close to the ropes. Gene missed an overhand right as he fell back.

Dempsey was fighting cautiously, apparently seeking to evade the disastrous first round such as met him at Philadelphia last fall.

ROUND TWO.

They came out boxing again and Gene shot a left and right to the chin. They were dancing and hitting high. Gene dropped an overhand right on Dempsey's chin after chasing him to a corner. Another right missed and Dempsey smashed a left to the body and three lefts to the chin before Tunney could get away from him. Jack dodged away from a right. They sparred cautiously in the center of the ring. Tunney's left was short. Dempsey fell into a clinch. Gene missed two more lefts, and Jack sent two short left hooks to the body. As Dempsey lunged low, Tunney again missed, but caught himself and felled two soft lefts to Jack's face as the round ended.

ROUND THREE.

Again they boxed carefully, slowly, in the center of the ring. Dempsey appeared to be trying to tantalize Tunney into leading and making an open fight of it. Tunney snatched over a pretty left jab, but took a half dozen raps on the back of the neck. Gene took the offensive, driving Dempsey into the ropes. As they both bobbed again in the center of the ring, Tunney lunged and fell into Dempsey's straight smash to the body. Gene held, while Jack clouted both hands to the mid section. A right smash over the heart drove Tunney back. Dempsey wove in close again to cuff the back of Tunney's head with his right and dig his left twice into the champion's ribs.

ROUND FOUR.

Dempsey took the offensive, but Tunney's right cracked on his chin. Gene's left found the same mark. While Dempsey rapped two lefts to the body, Gene complained that the blows were foul and fought back desperately as they fell at the ropes. Tunney took another left to the body. Jack was leading short lefts to the body, while Tunney counted lightly at the head. Tunney, trying to nail Jack, coming in, missed with both hands, and fell into a clinch. Two right smashes to the chin stung Dempsey. Gene lifted two more left hooks to the head and nailed Dempsey on the ropes. A right sent Dempsey reeling into a corner. A left hook nearly felled him. As Dempsey lay against the ropes, stunned, Tunney missed with both hands and the bell killed his opportunity.

ROUND FIVE.

They fell into a clinch at the start. Jack fell in close, counting to the body when Tunney, over-anxious, missed again. Jack backed away, falling into the ropes as Tunney took to the attack. When Jack tied him up, they sparred out to the center of the ring. Dempsey sent Tunney's head back with a stiff straight left, a right-hand blow on the temple shook Dempsey badly. The champion backed away, however, content to jab and wait. In another clinch, Jack tapped again on the back of Tunney's neck. Gene dug two lefts into Dempsey's body at the bell.

ROUND SIX.

They boxed carefully several seconds, before coming together for a flurry of body punches. The crowd bellowed as Dempsey's right hand smashed under Tunney's heart. But the champion came back ringing both hands to the chin. Dempsey tiring, fell into a clinch after the blows. Bobbing in through a left, Jack turned the champion half way round with a left hook to the head. Tunney came back strong, but two more gave Dempsey a look-in, as told before. That he failed in it and in the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds was due to Tunney's fine generalship.

Few of the old guard who have seen Dempsey come up from nowhere, climb the heights and then go down the sunset slope will forget the picture, probably the last one of him, presented in the final round when, with blood spattered over his chest from two cuts and bleeding eyes, he groggily bowed his way in to take a last forlorn farewell to his famous punch at his

It seemed to mark the passing of the greatest natural fighter the modern fight world has known. Dempsey will make a grievous mistake if he does not lay away the gloves and retire to his fireside. He has all the money and all the fame he needs. And perhaps his failure to land that finishing punch in the seventh round, in the end will be the best thing for him.

The King of Punchers passed.

Tunney snatched over a pretty left jab, but took a half dozen raps on the back of the neck. Gene took the offensive, driving Dempsey into the ropes. As they both bobbed again in the center of the ring, Tunney lunged and fell into Dempsey's straight smash to the body. Gene held, while Jack clouted both hands to the mid section. A right smash over the heart drove Tunney back. Dempsey wove in close again to cuff the back of Tunney's head with his right and dig his left twice into the champion's ribs.

ROUND FOUR.

Dempsey took the offensive, but Tunney's right cracked on his chin. Gene's left found the same mark. While Dempsey rapped two lefts to the body, Gene complained that the blows were foul and fought back desperately as they fell at the ropes. Tunney took another left to the body. Jack was leading short lefts to the body, while Tunney counted lightly at the head. Tunney, trying to nail Jack, coming in, missed with both hands, and fell into a clinch. Two right smashes to the chin stung Dempsey. Gene lifted two more left hooks to the head and nailed Dempsey on the ropes. A right sent Dempsey reeling into a corner. A left hook nearly felled him. As Dempsey lay against the ropes, stunned, Tunney missed with both hands and the bell killed his opportunity.

ROUND FIVE.

They fell into a clinch at the start. Jack fell in close, counting to the body when Tunney, over-anxious, missed again. Jack backed away, falling into the ropes as Tunney took to the attack. When Jack tied him up, they sparred out to the center of the ring. Dempsey sent Tunney's head back with a stiff straight left, a right-hand blow on the temple shook Dempsey badly. The champion backed away, however, content to jab and wait. In another clinch, Jack tapped again on the back of Tunney's neck. Gene dug two lefts into Dempsey's body at the bell.

ROUND SIX.

ROUND ONE.

The fight started at 10:07 p. m. Dempsey rushed a left lunge, falling into a clinch. Jack sent two left hooks to the ribs. In the clinch that followed, he clipped Gene four times with a right at the back of the head. They sparred cautiously. Tunney feinting for openings, while Tunney laid back. Gene snapped a left to Dempsey's chin and followed with a solid right smash to the chin. Jack fell into a clinch, taking another right to the head as he went in. Jack dropped a left on Tunney's body. Jack backed away, while the champion followed him across the ring with a volley of left and right hooks to the head close to the ropes. Gene missed an overhand right as he fell back.

ROUND TWO.

They came out boxing again and Gene shot a left and right to the chin. They were dancing and hitting high. Gene dropped an overhand right on Dempsey's chin after chasing him to a corner. Another right missed and Dempsey smashed a left to the body and three lefts to the chin before Tunney could get away from him. Jack dodged away from a right. They sparred cautiously in the center of the ring. Tunney's left was short. Dempsey fell into a clinch. Gene missed two more lefts, and Jack sent two short left hooks to the body. As Dempsey lunged low, Tunney again missed, but caught himself and felled two soft lefts to Jack's face as the round ended.

ROUND THREE.

Again they boxed carefully, slowly, in the center of the ring. Dempsey appeared to be trying to tantalize Tunney into leading and making an open fight of it. Tunney snatched over a pretty left jab, but took a half dozen raps on the back of the neck. Gene took the offensive, driving Dempsey into the ropes. ## Fighters Like Marionettes To Persons in $5 Seats

Actors in Ring Drama Resembled Vague Figures in a Fantastic Dream—"Rim Siders" Couldn't Tell Who Won.

(Date C. Harrison, an Associated Press staff writer, viewed the Tunney-Dempsey fight from the faraway $5 section. This is the story of his assignment.)

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Let this be the Odyssey of the $5 seats; of the persons who sat therein; of the fight they saw—if any.

These $5 seats—the cheapest and most remote in the crater that is Soldier Field—were really not as black as they were painted. They were blacker, said some of the spectators. The men who sat in them, and the women, behaved like martyrs during the first six-round preliminary, began directing barbed remarks at the policemen and ushers during the second, became untractable after the third, and, finally, like a flood, burst through the bluecoated levees and swirled down the aisles and over the plank seats into the ring, $10, $20 and, in a few cases, the ring-side reservations.

Didn't Know Who Won.

Two-thirds of those who remained in these rimside seats, three city blocks from the ring itself, actually did not learn who won the right until sometime afterward. This was due partly to their great distance from the white-lighted ring, partly to the twisting thousands that screened their view, and partly to the confusion that seemed to exist in the ring itself.

The referee's count over Tunney in the seventh round seemed unconsciously long to the far-from-the-ringsiders, but as one of them explained, light only travels 180,000 miles a second.

Those who came late and had the temerity to seek their exact location in the $5 sections were greeted by gasps from nearby fans and even from the police and ushers themselves; for there had been much nudging forward, a row at a time, by those way back, so that the best of the cheap seats were occupied as soon as the first preliminary was on.

Nearly everyone, 75 per cent, at any rate, carried some kind of glasses—telescopes, field glasses or the little lenses that sold for a quarter.

Like Figures in a Fantastic Dream.

To these $5 folk without optical aid, the ring was a dot of light on which marionettes moved, swung their arms or rushed at each other, for all the world like figures in a fantastic dream. The actors were such vague characters as one meets in that dusk between consciousness and unconsciousness—moral, eerie—and somewhat absurd.

The bows with which Dempsey dropped Tunney in the seventh were as obscure to the cave dwellers on the $5 planks as they were to Jesus nodding over their wheels in taxis waiting outside. All that could be seen were two top pugilists, one in white trunks, the other in red, knotted together in a corner until the legs of one of them seemed to melt, dropping a champion onto the canvas floor.

Smoke Obscured Vision.

The smoke from tens of thousands of cigarettes, cigars, pipes and from the flash powder of the cameramen created a fog over the bowl. They experienced the sensation of seeing the fight as though from above the clouds.

Some of the more philosophical o soled themselves with the belief that they least could see the huge electric score board across the stadium from them; a board that carried the names "Gene" and "Jack" in yard-high letters, with a place left for the round number and the recording of any knockdowns.

Even this trifling satisfaction was denied them because when the fight got under way the holders of the seat in front arose, blotting out the board.

The difficulty of which most of the disgruntled $5 spectators complained was not so much the distance from the ring, but the too slight sloping of seats.

One advantage did these $5 sitters have: They were nearest the exits, and consequently able to get out first.

These cave dwellers of Soldier Field were "at" the fight; anywhere, whether they saw it or not, and some of them learned who won and this is no exaggeration—when they bought papers downtown some time later.

FILM SHOWS HOW

KNOCKED OUT TUNNEY

The pictures, said to be the clearest ever taken of a championship fight, as the count progressed, the rather silly expression disappeared and he seemed to be able to focus on the slowly moving arm of the referee. He was in a fighting posture as the count reached eight and stood up rather wobbly at nine.

Tunney circled the ring fully three times after he got to his feet, stepping in once or twice to jab at Dempsey who kept motioning him to come in and fight. He moved too fast for Dempsey to do any damage.

It was a left, a right to the jaw, followed by four more alternate lefts and rights that sent the champion sprawling, the pictures showed. The right was the one that spilled him finally.

Officers of the Goodart Co. of New York, which filmed the fight, said the only accurate way of determining the time Tunney was down and the time Dempsey lost in getting back to his corner would be to measure the slow motion film which was operated by a motor. The faster motion pictures were cranked by hand and the human equation would have to be considered in them.

No one at the showing could detect any low blows.

The whiff of aromatic spirits and the strong language of Jimmy Thompson, formerly of Joplin, Mo., Gene's chief second, sent the champion out from his corner in the eighth round "fighting mad," Tunney said today.

Grew a Bit Careless.

"Just a few moments before Jimmy told me to keep working toward Dempsey's right side to avoid the left hook," said Gene. "I did that all right until Jack wobbled. Then I went in to get him, grew careless, and the first thing I knew I was on the floor."

"My first thoughts were, 'What is this? How did I get here?' I ought to be ashamed of myself. That smash stunned me but I could have gotten up all right at the count of five."

"But instead I looked across to my corner and there was Jimmy waving me to stay down. So I did, until the count reached nine. Then I made very certain that I would be hit with no more punches like that, at least until my head cleared."

"Dempsey said, 'Come on and fight.' He could have said, 'Come on and get hit and knocked down again.' My lips never moved but my mind said to Dempsey, 'So long, Jack. I'll see you next round, when I'm feeling better.' Then I went to dancing, and when I felt better I came back and won the fight."

Was Badly Hurt.

Then Jimmy Bronson took up the tale.

"Gene came back to his corner after the seventh, badly hurt. I asked him how he felt."

"Don't worry about me, I'm all right," Gene said. "So I gave him the smelling salts."

Tunney was unable to shake hands with his guests due to pain and swelling caused by too tight

Joe Dundee Loses 10-Round Verdict To Boston Boxer

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, world's welterweight boxing champion, lost a 10-round decision to Johnny Indrisano, peppery young east Boston fighter, here last night. The title was not at stake, as each weighed 145, one pound over the welter limit.

Indrisano's decision was clearly earned by smart, clever boxing and the award was unanimous from both referee and judges.

Dundee, according to his usual style was slow to start, a fact that allowed Indrisano to pile up points in the early rounds, while keeping the champion's formidable right hand blunt at harmless range with left jabs.

Sidelights on The Battle

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Despite all the rousing conversation over the length of the referee's count over Tunney in the seventh round, the customers in the faraway places of the stadium never realized anything was even disputable until they read it later.

Jack Sharkey, who was knocked out by Dempsey two months ago and who predicted Dempsey would defeat Tunney last night, said today that he thinks the former champion is through for good as a fighter.

Nat Evans, New York plunger and former manager of the Casino at Havana, Cuba, is credited with having covered all the late Dempsey bets and holding the odds at even money at the last minute. He was said to have been one of the largest winners on the fight, with Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, a $25,000 winner. Packey McFarland was said to have made $15,000 on Tunney's victory.

Moss Goldblatt, Cincinnati horseman, and Col. Matt J. Winn, general manager of the Lincoln Field track, where Dempsey trained, were said to be among the Dempsey losers. Al Jolson, musical comedy star, was reported a $15,000 winner on Tunney.

A little woman in a blue suit climbed into the ring just about the time the announcer held up Tunney's hand as the victor, but she was hustled from the ring so hastily that her name was lost in the uproar. "I just made up my mind to be the only woman to greet him in the ring," she said.

Old sports writers recalled that exactly the same claim was made of a "long count" in 1917 in behalf of Corbett in his battle at Carson City, Nev., with Fitzsimmons. Corbett's associates charged that in the sixth round Corbett was allowed a count of 14 seconds to regain his feet, while the referee reported a count of just nine.

Found: A place where prohibition agents couldn't get in. It was the stadium at Soldier Field last night. Tex Rickard refused admission to 15 agents sent by prohibition Director E. C. Yellowley to stop any liquor law violation there might be.

William B. Leeds, the "Tin-Plate King," who flew from New York for the fight, had a little sport of his own on the last lap of his flight from Cleveland to Chicago. Near Bryan, O., the Leeds plane overtook another three-motored plane and the two craft raced the remainder of the way. Leeds, spurring ahead as their goal came in sight.

Carolyn Bishop, who came all the way from Los Angeles to root for Gene Tunney, was smilingly noncommittal when reporters asked her if she and the champion were engaged. Her uncle, Fred Thompson, who is a close friend of Tunney's, said: "There's absolutely nothing to it."

On two sides of the brilliantly lighted ring there rose high above it two platforms on stilts. From the "rimside" seats they projected over the ring like sombre death's heads. It was where the official fight pictures were taken.

DEMOCRATS IN SENATE TO AVOID INSURGENT DEAL

Disposition Is to Let Republicans Organize Upper Chamber Even if in Temporary Minority.

RADICALS MAY ACT WITH REGULARS

By So Doing, Insurgents Would Get Better Committee Places Than if They Bolt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Democratic leaders are not disposed to attempt to organize the Senate in December even if the Republican majority of one is reduced to a minority of one by refusal of the Senate to Senators-elect Smith of Illinois and Vane of Pennsylvania, pending further investigation of their cases.

With the Republicans having a nominal majority, the minority leaders take the position that the Republicans should be permitted to organize the Senate and assume the responsibility for any action. The lack of action on major problems confronting the new Congress.

While willing to permit the Republicans to organize if they can muster the necessary votes, the Democrats are prepared to put a full ticket of Senate officers in the field and the leaders say that with few exceptions the minority will support the slate. Should the Republican insurgents support any of the Democratic candidates the Republicans would be defeated.

No Deal With Insurgents.
Democratic leaders are positive to the declaration, however, that they will seek no agreements or understandings with the Republican insurgents on this or any other matter during the forthcoming session.

Four years ago, when the insurgents joined with the Democrats and elected Senator Smith of South Carolina as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, there were charges that the minority had entered into an agreement with the insurgents, but this was denied then and still is denied by the Democrats.

Present opinion at the Capitol is that the insurgents will vote with the Republican regulars on organization. While the Republicans in charge, their committee assignments would be much better than they probably would be under the Democrats. One of their number, Norris of Nebraska, would become chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and another, Frazier of North Dakota, would become chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee.

Daves Would Break Tie.
Even with Smith and Vane denied the oath of office at the outset, the Republicans still might be able to organize the Senate, should Senator Shipstead of Minnesota, the remaining Farmer-Labor Senator, cast his vote with them. The Democrats should support their own slate. Then Vice President Dawes would cast the deciding ballot.

Some of the Democrats, however, have openly expressed their opposition to any program by which the Democrats would seek to organize the Senate with Illinois and Pennsylvania denying their full representation.

DEMOCRATS IN SENATE TO AVOID INSURGENT DEAL

Disposition Is to Let Republican Organize Upper Chamber Even if in Temporary Minority.

DEMOCRATS MAY ACT WITH REGULARS

So Doing, Insurgents Would Get Better Committee Places Than if They Bolt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Democratic leaders are not disposed to attempt to organize the Senate in November even if the Republican majority of one is reduced to a minority of one by refusal of the Senate to elect Smith or Wilson and Vane of Pennsylvania, pending further investigation of their cases.

With the Republicans having a nominal majority, the minority leaders take the position that the Republicans should be permitted to organize the Senate and assume the responsibility for any action or lack of action on major problems confronting the new Congress.

While willing to permit the Republicans to organize if they can secure the necessary votes, the Democrats are prepared to put a bill of Senate officers in the field and the leaders say that with few exceptions the minority will support the state. Should the Republicans support any of the Democratic candidates the Democrats would be defeated.

Democratic leaders are positive in the declaration, however, that they will seek no agreements or understandings with the Republican insurgents on this or any other matter during the forthcoming session.

Four years ago, when the insurgents joined with the Democrats and elected Senator Smith of South Carolina as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, the Democrats were in a position to force the issue, but this was not done and still is denied by the Democrats.

Present opinion at the Capitol is that the insurgents will vote with the Republican regulars on organization. With the Republican regulars, their committee assignments would be much better than they probably would be if they bolted. One of their leaders, Norris of Nebraska, would be chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and another, Frazier of North Dakota, would become chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee.

It was pointed out that the Democrats should support their own nominees and in high spirits, despite his 36 years. He said he was glad to see that the great institution, the Senate, was in the hands of men able in peace to make the same admirable effort that the A. E. F. had in the war.

GALA RECEPTION AND BALL END PARIS LEGION MEETING

French Government Chiefs and Officials of Capital Entertain Americans at Hotel de Ville and Opera.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Sept. 23.—The American Legion's 1927 National Convention, the first ever held outside the United States—closed last night with a gala reception at the Hotel de Ville and a gala ball at the Opera. These affairs were arranged by the city of Paris and by the French Government.

The ball attracted so many of the legionnaires and their ladies that the house was full almost before the band struck up the first waltz, and several hundred had to be turned away.

It would be hard to estimate how many did get in, but they estimated at thousands, and dancing continued until the first of the morning. Despite this the universal expression was that they had enjoyed the time of their lives.

Rarely has the famous building seen such a brilliant throng with the men in evening dress and the women in rich gowns under the glow of the magnificent chandeliers.

Dancing Continued. As a special compliment to the legion, the government invited the "Orange" band to share in the task of furnishing the music. The band played so that the dancing was continuous and everybody had a chance to fox trot to his heart's content.

At the Hotel de Ville reception cordial speeches were exchanged by the president of the American Legion, Commander Howard P. Savage, Gen. Pershing and others. A concert was also given, with musical stars participating.

40-and-a-half Society. The "play" organization of veterans whose officers are given French railway titles, held a "wreck" with immense success in the Palais du Trocadero.

A number of candidates were initiated and were admitted to the accompaniment of a volley of rifle fire. Among them was one Frenchman, Capt. L'Hopital, aid to Marshal Poch.

After the initiation the new Chef de Chemin de Fer, P. St. Clement, was elected.

CLEMENCEAU ENJOYS VISIT OF LEGION MEN

New Commander, Gen. Pershing and Others Greet Wartime Premier.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Sept. 23.—Edward E. Spafford began his term as National Commander of the American Legion today by paying his respects to Georges Clemenceau, wartime Premier of France.

Commander Spafford was accompanied by Gen. Pershing, former Commander Howard P. Savage and a Legion delegation. They were received by "The Tiger" with open arms.

"I am really touched," he said in reply to an address voted by the Legion convention, "that the boys I saw fighting in France for France 10 years ago thought of me, one of the men of the wartime who now have disappeared."

"Tiger" Enjoys Good Health. The former Premier is in good health and in high spirits, despite his 36 years. He said he was glad to see that the great institution, the Senate, was in the hands of men able in peace to make the same admirable effort that the A. E. F. had in the war.

The members of the delegation talked with him a few minutes and he and Gen. Pershing exchanged war reminiscences.

Clemenceau, wearing his inevitable gray cotton gloves and gray cap on one side of his head, spoke in English during the visit. Exclaiming, "What are you doing here, dear friend?" he rushed to Pershing.

"I came to see you and I'm glad to see you younger than ever," Pershing replied.

SMITH CANDIDACY BEFORE WESTERN DEMOCRATS TODAY

Leader Who Called Ogden Conference Predicts It Will Indorse New York Governor.

TWO-THIRDS RULE TO BE CONSIDERED

L. H. Francisco of San Diego, Who Has Announced Presidential Candidacy, at Gathering.

OGDEN, Utah, Sept. 23.—Western Democratic leaders were here today for a conference on "big problems of the party," including unity in the West and indorsement of a presidential candidate.

Although an invitational letter sent to prominent Democrats in a dozen states failed to mention any particular candidate, Fred W. Johnson of Wyoming, who will preside at the first session, said he expected Gov. Smith of New York would be indorsed for the presidential nomination.

"Withdrawal of William G. McAdoo has cleared the field," Johnson said on his arrival. "There is no other candidate."

"Eastern and Southern Democrats are watching this conference with great interest for they would like to know just how the West feels, but this conference is to talk about the big problems of the party and attention will be given to all of them."

"The two-thirds rule at national conventions will be one of the most important matters to come up as will the unity of Western Democratic plans."

Delbert M. Draper, Democratic state chairman of Utah, said the wet and dry question and the matter of "Western sympathy" would be considered.

"What the voters of the West want is someone who has capacity of understanding that there is something west of the bower," Draper declared.

It was his opinion that there would be no concerted opposition to Smith in Utah.

Other delegates mentioned tariff legislation to meet the diversified interests of the West as a probable subject for discussion.

Johnson said he expected delegations from Utah, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, California, Colorado, South Dakota, Iowa and possibly Washington, Oregon and Arizona.

He said that while New Mexico would not be represented, leaders from that state, including John R. McManus, state chairman, had informed him they were in favor of the program outlined for the meeting.

George H. Hunter, prominent party worker of that state, telegraphed that "sentiment is very favorable to Al Smith."

L. E. Dillingham, State Democratic Chairman of Idaho, en route here, said that Smith would receive the full support of at least 10 Western states.

Strong Smith Sentiment. "The Smith sentiment," Dillingham said, "has been found to be overwhelming in the Western States since the first conference at Ogden last July."

He also predicted this conference would result in a permanent "Smith-for-President" organization in the West.

The first potential candidate for the presidential nomination to appear here was L. H. Francisco of San Diego, who recently announced his candidacy. He told Johnson that he would attend the sessions and "might have something to say."

Francisco has been active for several years in Democratic circles at San Diego. His friends expressed surprise when he announced he would seek the nomination.

HOLDS FASCISTS ARE BARRED FROM CITIZENSHIP IN U. S.

Baltimore Naturalization Chief Says Oath Binds Italians to Motherland Forever.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 23.—On the ground that the Fascist oath holds an Italian's allegiance to his mother country and interferes with his loyalty to the United States, U. S. District Judge J. P. Burke of Baltimore today refused to grant citizenship to a Fascist.

Yesterday in the United States District Court, Judge Burke held that the oath of citizenship administered to the applicant was invalid because it required the applicant to swear to uphold the Fascist government.

Thomas said he believed that under the expatriation act of 1907 even a citizen might be deported if it were disclosed that he had subscribed to an oath like that which, according to reports, the Fascists are required to take.

AMERICAN WIFE OF NEXT LORD MAYOR

BRITAIN TO SUGGEST NEW PACT WITH U. S.

Purpose of English Proposals Is to Undo Effects of Geneva Conference.

By Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World. Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Publishing Co., (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—Great Britain will suggest to the United States an all inclusive arbitration treaty and outlawry of war agreement before the first of the year, according to well-informed circles here.

A campaign to undo the supposed evil effects of the naval conference failure in Geneva will be started by Laborites, Liberals and the League of Nations Union and will play a leading part in the movement, it is predicted.

The existing Anglo-American arbitration treaty comes up for revision next June.

The campaign, however, will be carefully kept free from the Geneva protocol ramifications which are regarded by England as the great obstacle to disarmament and arbitration.

It is learned authoritatively that Australia is the chief stumbling block in the way of British acceptance of compulsory arbitration under the Hague code.

CROKER SOUGHT TO BECOME IRISH CITIZEN. WITNESSES SAY

Evidence Given Supporting That of Letter Previously Offered in Suit Over Estate.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 23.—Testimony designed to show that Richard Croker, former Tammany chief, had instituted steps to become a citizen of the Irish Free State before his death in 1922 was introduced here yesterday when the Croker estate case was reopened in Circuit Court.

The testimony was in the form of a letter alleged to have been written by Croker Jan. 16, 1922. Capt. P. M. Monaghan of Dublin, who was first introduced as the Irish Free State, testified that the letter addressed to Arthur Griffith, president of the Free State, was given to him after Croker's death and later delivered by him to N. K. Hennnessy, at that time attorney for Mrs. Croker.

Hennnessy testified that he delivered the letter to Mrs. Croker. The document was first introduced as evidence last fall. Since that time it has been disputed by handwriting experts at various hearings in New York and West Palm Beach.

Sons and daughters of Croker are seeking an interest in the Palm Beach estate, which, they claim, is the Croker homestead.

Mrs. Beulah Croker, the widow, is trying to establish that the Dublin home is the family homestead.

LEAGUE TO STUDY ALCOHOL PROBLEM, ASSEMBLY VOTES

Resolution Introduced by Finland, Poland and Sweden Unanimously Adopted by Geneva Body.

DR. NANSEN COMPELS PLEDGE TO ARMENIA

Norwegian Threatens to Resign as Commissioner for Refugees Unless Action Is Taken by Council.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, Sept. 23.—A resolution introduced by Finland, Poland and Sweden that the problem of alcoholism be studied seriously by a special committee to be appointed by the Council, was adopted unanimously today by the Assembly of the League of Nations.

The question of the appointment of a committee is to be taken up by the 1928 Assembly. The proposal was backed by the Belgian, Danish and Czechoslovakian delegations.

Threatening to resign as the League of Nations Commissioner for Armenian refugees unless the powers do something to create an Armenian National Home, Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the noted Arctic explorer, succeeded in inducing the council of the league yesterday to make a new appeal to the nations to contribute funds to settle on the soil of the Armenian republic 50,000 refugees now scattered over different parts of the Near East.

Says League Has Failed. Nansen told the council that the league had failed in its efforts to help the Armenians.

M. Titulescu, Rumanian Foreign Minister, took the lead in appealing to Nansen not to insist on his resignation, which the Norwegian delegate eventually withdrew on the promise that he would have an opportunity to air the whole Armenian problem in the assembly.

He informed the council that he had been unable to get the consent of the Erivan Government to the refugee settlement plan because he could not guarantee material help from the nation's members of the league.

M. Briand, French Foreign Minister, promised French assistance in resettling Armenians on the soil of Syria.

Deek 1 has been chosen unofficially by League leaders for the next meeting of the special commission charged with preparing a draft treaty for submission to the international conference for the reduction of armaments. The United States is represented on the commission.

U. S. AND ARMS COMMITTEE

The United States Government will have an opportunity to participate in the elaboration of the system of arbitration and security pacts simultaneously with its cooperation with the League of Nations in progressive disarmament.

In preparing its general report to the Assembly of the League today the Disarmament Commission decided to change the original plan restricting the study of arbitration and security to countries that are members of the League to permit non-members to be represented on the special committee of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission.

The committee will try to develop security and arbitration, incident to limitation of armaments.

Dr. Eduard Beneš, ex-Czechoslovakia, chairman of the commission, said this change had been suggested in order to make American collaboration possible.

On motion of the Netherlands delegate, Jonkheer J. Londen, the report to the League will also advocate negotiations between members and nonmembers of the League, of agreements to outlaw war "along the lines recently approved by American citizens."

TWO EUROPEAN ENVOYS TO CHINA HELD UP NEAR PEKING

Belgian and Czechoslovakian Ministers Robbed After Visit to Ming Tomb.

By the Associated Press. PEKING, Sept. 23.—The Belgian Minister, De Waroux, d'Honnin, and Haile, Czechoslovakian Minister, were held up and robbed at the point of a pistol today. They were returning from a motor trip to the Ming tombs, north of the capital, when they stopped to take a photograph. A robber suddenly appeared and took their signet rings, watches, money and even their vests. Several Chinese watched, but made no attempt to assist the victims.

The Ministers went to Chang Ping-Chow, told the magistrate of the robbery and requested an escort of soldiers, with which they returned to Peking.

Illinois Mine Workers' Statement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
We are very thankful for the liberal policy of your paper and especially your editorial without date of Sept. 20, in which you have dealt with bias on the coal strike situation in Illinois, covering the important factors in a brief manner.

While it is very hard to make the general public understand that a wage reduction would not benefit the Illinois coal industry, the fact remains that the non-union operators in Kentucky and West Virginia would immediately cut their wages accordingly, and the non-union worker in those fields would be forced to accept this reduction, because it is not a matter of choice, but of necessity. The coal companies own the entire mining camps, and the workers must accept anything that may be offered, and at the less protest they are given by the paid company deputies who set the miners' belongings on the company highway and give them a specified time to leave; and to leave those camps the miner and his family must walk a number of miles to get off the company premises, as he has no available cash. His earnings being checked off by the company for his purchases in the company store, and it is very seldom that he receives any actual cash.

To draw a fair comparison, we have our history of the South before the Civil War and at present the unorganized miners in those States who are practically owned body and soul by the coal company, even to the minister of the Gospel, who must preach the dictations of the coal company or vacate. Those States are a disgrace to any civilization and Congress should erase this blot by guaranteeing those people their right of the pursuit of happiness under our Constitution.

It we as a civilized nation don't want to increase such conditions of serfdom, then we should advise against any reduction in wages in the coal industry, and from a business standpoint request the manufacturers and business men of St. Louis to demand Illinois coal, as 75 per cent of the Illinois miners' earnings for the commodities of life are spent on the St. Louis market, and prosperity cannot exist in business when wages are at a starvation basis.

The Illinois miners have offered to return to work under the terms of the Jacksonville agreement, to co. use in effect until Feb. 1, 1928, and the committee of two operators and two miners to be appointed whose duty it shall be to conduct a full investigation and survey of the industry and formulate a new agreement to be submitted to a joint conference. This the operators refused at the last Chicago meeting. The Illinois miners have volunteered their services in every way to bring about the stabilization of the industry, and have repeatedly appealed to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a revision of the unjust freight rates which favor the non-union fields.

If the Illinois operators would save the money they are spending on propaganda in this strike, and spend same on research work to extract all of the by-products out of Illinois coal and eliminate this waste, they would accomplish something useful and thereby save part of this nation's natural resources.

LOCAL NO. 215, UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.

Front Lawns Desirable.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CAN you explain why the city permits some apartment buildings to be erected right on the sidewalk line instead of back on an even line with residences (houses and single flats) a few feet back from the sidewalk and allowing a front yard helps the city aesthetically. It is in harmony with the boulevard idea. The present plan of building apartments mars the city's beauty.

The placing of apartment buildings on the sidewalk line works a hardship on persons of moderate means who own or are paying for their homes in that it shuts off their view of the street.

It is true a few rooms might be lost to builders of apartments under the above suggested plan. But the welfare of the community should not be sacrificed for that of the individual.

Best Memorial for Lindbergh.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WAS so glad you expressed yourself in favor of a flying field, as a memorial to Col. Lindbergh in your editorial of last Friday. A flying field would seem more appropriate than a piece of statuary, and more in keeping with Col. Lindbergh's idea of aerial progression. Flying is the one thing he is interested in above everything else in the world and certainly the thing that fits in with that idea would please him the most.

MRS. MAY MACBETH.

CITY OUTLETS HERE AND ELSEWHERE

In its campaign for wider highways out of the city the Post-Dispatch showed yesterday how general this movement has become throughout the country. There is not another big city in the United States that is not widening its outlets to take care of traffic. Some of them, for instance New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore and Boston, have already widened part of their outlets. New York has two that carry eight lines of traffic, and Los Angeles has one. Woodward avenue, a Detroit outlet, has been provided with two 45-foot strips to Pontiac, a distance of 15 miles, and when this highway is complete it will be 203 feet wide. Boston outlets are being made 50 feet wide, and a 100-foot boulevard connects Philadelphia with Jersey City.

St. Louis is meanwhile doing nothing. Cross-country traffic, which is increasing by leaps and bounds, is being brought to our gates by national highways, but we are letting them discharge into bottle-neck roads which are in every instance, but one, only 18 feet wide. The exception is the Olive Street road, which is 24 feet wide. The St. Charles road, which is part of the principal national highways through the State, is but 18 feet wide. This allows two lines of traffic. It results in congestion and annoyance, and when the new bridges are built across the Mississippi and Missouri rivers north of town through east and west traffic will go around St. Louis. We will pay this penalty for not providing adequate highways over which this through traffic can get into and out of town.

Roy F. Britton, president of the St. Louis Automobile Club, thinks the matter sufficiently pressing to justify resort to the initiative upon a new bond issue project. The Automobile Club proposed at the last session of the Legislature an additional $120,000,000 road bond issue, of which some $15,000,000 might be applicable for widening St. Louis outlets, but the legislators did nothing about it. It is not a matter which particularly appeals to country people. They see traffic pass with little thought of the inconvenience it suffers getting through a big city. The cities of Missouri, which pay most of the taxes, would have to join hands to pass such a bond issue.

At any rate, the St. Louis outlets are too narrow. We must widen them, as every other American city is widening its outlets, and be about it quickly.

MRS. BLAIR SETS AN EXAMPLE.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair is a woman who knows her own political mind and doesn't hesitate to say what is in it. Questioned in regard to a rumor that she was about to retire as Democratic national committeewoman for Missouri and vice chairman of the national committee, Mrs. Blair promptly replied: "I have no intention of resigning the vice chairmanship. My office holds until after the next national convention."

And that's that! We commend the plain and unequivocal English of Mrs. Blair to all the makers of political statements. Nobody can have the slightest doubt as to what she purposes to do. And it took only seven more words than the famous 10 to tell it.

IN OLD KENTUCKY.

We have from time to time pointed out that Kentucky isn't what she used to be, that the grand old State has had an astonishing reversal of form. Take, for example, the gubernatorial race now in progress there. It is a pitched battle between the reformers who are trying to refashion Kentucky into a Bluegrass edition of Kansas, and a liberal group which is trying to save at least one vestige of the State's old-time flavor, namely, horse-racing.

It may seem strange that in a State whose heart is supposed to pulsate at the very thought of a fine horse, the wowers are in full cry and the apostles of gloom are bidding fair to prevail. It is no less strange than that the Louisville Courier-Journal, once indissolubly identified with the mellow and liberal Waterston, has assumed leadership of the reform movement.

The Democratic candidate in this fight, which is expected to break down party lines, is J. C. W. Beckham, who, when Goebel was shot a quarter of a century ago, became the boy Governor of Kentucky. He later went to the Senate, being defeated by Ernst in 1920. Beckham, once a curiosity among Kentucky politicians because he was one of the first to declare himself dry, has evidently become a full-fledged reformer. He heads the anti-race horse group. The Republican candidate is a former Judge of the Court of Appeals, Flem D. Sampson. He is doing as well as he can with the liberal cause.

For several years acute observers of Kentucky politics have realized that the wowers are gaining the upper hand. Some say the next Kentucky Derby will be the last one. Certainly the fate of the second member of the famous trilogy, beautiful women, fast horses, good whisky, is teetering in the balance. We do not doubt that it won't be long now.

FIGHT FILMS.

It was not a crime to attend the Dempsey-Tunney fight. It was not a crime to listen in on the blow-by-blow report over the radio. It is not a crime to send pictures of the fight from Chicago to any other point, or to publish them in a newspaper or other publication. But it is a crime—a crime under Federal jurisdiction—to send moving pictures of the fight to any point outside the State of Illinois.

There lies a delicious example of the inanity of much professional reform. Unable to stop prize fighting in many states, the reformers turned their pleas toward the Federal Government, as they have of late years done with increasing frequency. But they were unable to reach fighting itself. The best they ever attained, in fact, was prohibition of the shipment of moving pictures of fights in interstate commerce.

A more futile attempt to attack prize fighting could hardly be imagined, nor one based upon a more fallacious argument. This argument consisted in the assertion that there was something demoralizing in the sight of two pugilists battering each other. It included the notion that the sight of a bloody nose was injurious to the spectator. Of course, nothing could be more ridiculous. As Robert Lynd, the English essayist, pointed out recently in New Statesman, the sight of a bloody combat could harm no normal person, because it is essentially revolting. But the uplifters who were out to save the public from being demoralized by the vice of prize-fighting could not see this. They were as devoid of intelligence as they were of respect for the rights and tastes of others. Had they been intelligent, they would have circulated films of the bloodiest fights. That might have done prize-fighting some real harm in the public's eyes.

PHILADELPHIA IS VARE'S

The citizens of Philadelphia had an opportunity Tuesday to repudiate Boss Vare, and, according to J. Hampton Moore, head of the Independent ticket, they right lustily seized it. The Vare machine, Mr. Moore says, is "rebuked and staggering."

We think Mr. Moore is mistaken. It is true the Vare machine did not function with its customary efficiency. It was far below the form it displayed in that "golden primary" when Mr. Vare, himself a candidate for senatorial nomination, simply romped away from the scholarly Senator Pepper and the righteous Gov. Pinchot. And Tuesday's performance does not compare at all with the Philadelphia exhibition of the Vare machine in the senatorial election when preclined after preclined returned a perfect score by giving Mr. Vare every vote in the poll, without so much as a single ballot for his Democratic opponent, Mr. Wilson.

All that is granted. Still, Boss Vare's ticket went through without a miss on Tuesday. His candidate for the mayoralty nomination, Mr. Mackey, who, by the way, managed Mr. Vare's senatorial campaign, garnered some 14,000 votes more than the rebellious Mr. Moore. Again, the Vare candidate for District Attorney won over his opponent by 103,883. So on all down the line. The Vare men all won—not unannounced, to be sure, but by comfortable margins.

It was said of that departed Pennsylvania boss, Matthew Stanley Quay, that "he carried the State in the hollow of his drooping eyelid." Boss Vare's ownership of Philadelphia, it strikes us, is similarly certified.

A man who tried to cross the Atlantic in a canoe has been rescued in midocean, which shows that the sea is getting tired of being laughed at.

BULLDOZING FRANCE.

The tariff barons apparently have passed the word down to Washington that there must be no surrender to France in the tariff dispute. Because they finance the Republican party's campaigns, the tariff barons nearly always have their way. Our State Department's latest note to the French Government is described by the London Westminster Gazette, a neutral observer, as "one of the most extraordinary diplomatic notes ever dispatched." It threatens that if the French persist in their present tariff on American goods, we will retaliate by still further increasing our tariff on French goods.

Let us get this clear. In the face of the fact that American goods were allowed to enter France under a very low tariff, the Republicans erected an almost impassable tariff wall against French goods. For several years the French endured this inequality. Then they rebelled. They doubled the tariff on American goods. This doubled, the French tariff was still considerably lower than our tariff. Nevertheless, we entered a vehement protest. France replied by offering to lower her tariff if we would lower ours.

To that fair and conciliatory proposal we have now replied. And what does our reply say? It says France must reduce her tariff, but that we have no intention of reducing our own. And it says, furthermore, that if the French do not submit, we will retaliate. Could anything be more arrogant or unreasonable? Is anything more calculated to enrage another people against us? Is it possible to conceive of a more insolent example of brazen unfairness? It is, as the Westminster Gazette says, "the first occasion that a nation has protested against another's tariffs, while admitting that its own tariffs are higher than those which it objects."

We wonder why Europe dislikes us. We wonder why Uncle Sam is cartooned as a Shylock and a bully. Our Government's conduct in the tariff controversy pretty well explains Europe's attitude.

Mr. Hornsby brought a pennant to St. Louis last year, and if he will now imbue those Giants with the same spirit of determination with which he fired the Cardinals a year ago and lay the Pirates low, perhaps he will bring us another pennant this fall.

A TEST FOR SINCLAIR.

At last we are going to know whether that cool bearing with which Harry Sinclair has treated his indictments in the Teapot Dome affair has anything behind it but pure bluff.

We shall find out because, according to ex-Senator Pomeroy, counsel for the Government, Harry M. Blackmer, one of the two Government witnesses who have been vacationing in Europe in order to avoid testifying, has been subpoenaed and will shortly return to tell all he knows about the operations of the Continental Trading Co. of Canada. The Government says that when the operations of this firm are disclosed we shall be apprised of the corruption behind the leasing of Teapot Dome.

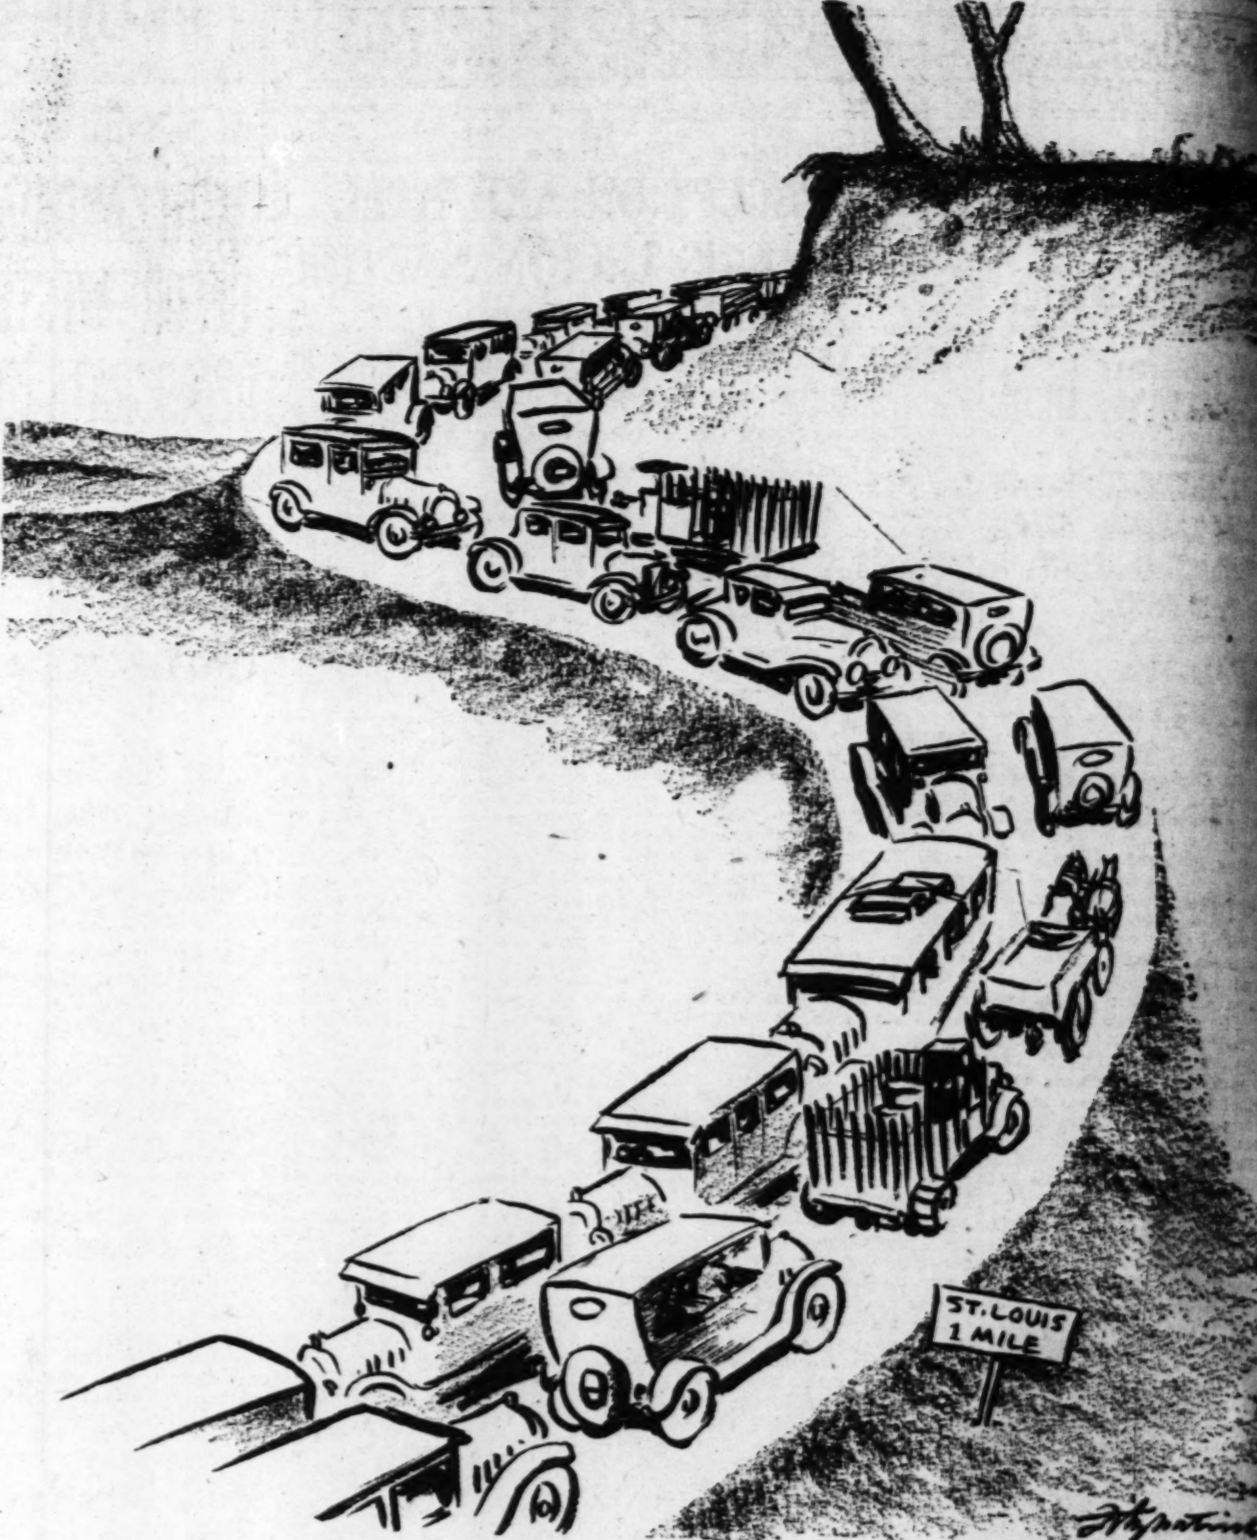

It must be admitted that his reverses have failed to perturb Mr. Sinclair. When the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals held that "a trail of deceit, falsehood, subterfuge, bad faith and corruption" ran through the incidents connected with the lease, he calmly ordered the case appealed to the Supreme Court. When he was found guilty of contempt of the Senate, he announced that no "decent, high minded citizen" like himself could be subjected to the indignities of a common jail, and appealed this case also to the highest court.

While Fall and Doherty have been worrying and whitening, the one-time druggist of Independence, Kan., has never batted an eye.

If Blackmer tells what he is expected to about the operations of the Continental Trading Co. and Mr. Sinclair retains his sang froid, we shall have to hang his picture in the gallery of our best poker faces.

The Pirates and the Giants are now working for the Cardinals.

Have faith in Indiana. The candle light may soon again be gleaming through the sycamores on the banks of the Wabash far away.

THE HOT DOG IN LONDON.

From the New York Herald-Tribune.

CHICAGO, as some British writer has said, spreads over the world. By Chicago, of course, he meant America, and especially such things as American "movies," jazz, the radio, black bottom, shirt sleeves, ice cream, horn-rimmed spectacles, motor bandits and hot dogs.

The latest of these emigrants is the hot dog. According to a Mr. Francis Daniels, referred to as an English sportsman and president of Hot Dog Ltd., the succulent frankfurter is even now taking London by storm. He sees a brilliant future for it at all great sporting events and recreational centers from the humblest to the highest.

Or rather, we should say, from the highest to the humblest. In this manner it is received in order of its introduction among our English cousins. With us it is the other way. Here we usually first hear of a new popular comestible or toy or dance as we do of a new slang expression, after it has caught on with the great self-conscious crowd. It comes up from the soil or the pavements without formal presentation to confront us with its fresh impudence. And frequently in our fastidious regularity we spurn it.

"Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face, We first endure, then pity, then embrace." But in England the hot dog, like jazz, like the newest dances, must have its proper introduction. Not only must it be sponsored by such a person as Mr. Daniels, who has allowed himself to be seen publicly eating one, but it must be dressed up in individuality with paper parcels for dainty gloved fingers. In this manner it is received socially, and with the imprimatur of good form it will presently be taken up by hot polloi.

Tradition inclines us to prefer the more democratic course even for the hot dog. But whatever the manner of its introduction, we are glad to note that it gets there just the same.

FIXING CENTERS.

From the Washington Post.

THE Geological Survey has had to relocate the center of industry in the United States. In 1926, the center was on the northern boundary of Indiana, approximately 110 miles east of Chicago. In January, 1927, it was still on the boundary of Indiana, but had moved about 50 miles nearer Chicago. In January, 1928, it had moved about 25 miles to the southwest of its previous position, and was about 50 miles southeast of Chicago. The total movement in a period of 18 years was approximately 75 miles in a west-by-south direction. The geographic center of the United States is near the center of the northern boundary of Kansas, and the center of population is in Owen County, Southwestern Indiana. The center of industry, which is based on the capacity of steam engines, turbines, water wheels and internal combustion engines located in factories and in public utility power plants, is 640 miles east by north of the geographic center and about 170 miles due north of the center of population.

"SAVING IRVING'S HOME."

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

ORGANIZED "to preserve historic places," support the Constitution and maintain old American ideals," the Society of Patriotic Builders of America has taken title to the building that was for a time the home of Washington Irving, at the corner of Irving place and East Seventeenth street, Manhattan. This particular "home" undoubtedly did give the name to Irving place. But in his active life Irving was more abroad than in America.

"Jonathan Oldstyle," "Diedrich Knickerbocker," Washington Irving, historian, humorist, diplomat and Oxford LL.D., was of the stock of the old merchant princes of New York; the scene of old Dutch families, whose customs were delightfully satirized, imagined that the vicinage of the pirate's stamping ground had affected Irving's star.

"Rip Van Winkle," with which 10 persons are familiar to one who ever read any other of Irving's volume, because it was the theme of Joseph Jefferson's favorite play, indicated the keen interest of the author in the Hudson River country. This persisted as an influence on his life. In his later years he established "Wolfert's Roost" or "Sunnyside," and gave the name to Irvington. In this bachelor home, with his brother and his nieces at his bedside, Irving died. But his name lives on in the greatest in the galaxy of native New Yorkers who had challenged the hegemony of New England in the world of American literature.

MANNERS AND MOTORS.

From the Detroit Free Press.

A LITTLE more "living room courtesy" has been suggested by Edward Ver Linden, president of a motor car corporation, as a remedy for careless and reckless driving. Glaring, muttering and shouting at drivers of other automobiles are among the discourteous habits Ver Linden says American drivers have formed. In one's home charming manners would greet a stranger, but on the open road everything goes. After all, isn't it true? Have you come home from a Sunday drive on a crowded road with the memory of the way some fellow uncourtly "hollered" at you when you had to swing out because that little car suddenly pulled out into the road in front of you? And after he was so "fresh" and "smart" didn't that make you feel just a little reckless? Didn't you try to speed up a bit and try to crowd him over in the road as you went past? In the good old days a man used to be "quick on the trigger" when he didn't think the company was as polite toward him as it ought to be. Now the trigger finger has given place to the accelerator foot. The reaction is to "step on the gas" whenever some rude person tries to wrest away the freedom of the open road. Which frequently results in accident stories for the Monday papers.

BEING of a poetic temperament, illusions were acquired sooner, and more fondly and lost with more bitter anguish of parting than in the case of the average man. We have been offered a number of wedding breakfasts to last in breakfast until 1925. Lunch and dinner will come later. They generally are in the morning. But why contentment a romantic illusion, meets an inevitable fact, the illusion loses.

Pleistocene Paradise

THE BEGINNING. By Alan Sullivan. Dutton.

HOSE whose imaginations have been stirred by the book of Genesis wherein is revealed something of the story of prehistoric life on this planet, should read Alan Sullivan's "The Beginning," an interesting and somewhat prophetic tale.

The scheme of the book is rather ingenious. Jean Caxton, daughter of a famous paleontologist, is excited by a considerable difficulty in choosing a husband. There are two ardent suitors, both rich and apparently eligible in a high degree, but they differ greatly in character and natural gifts. Each, when viewed alone, seems all that is desirable. Burden, the big game hunter, has the mental and physical endowments of Jack Sawyer. Sylvester, the relatively young man, is an intellectual. How to choose?

Fate takes a hand. A letter comes to Caxton from a fellow paleontologist who has died since the letter was written. What Caxton reads there sounds goofy. The Pleistocene monster has been seen by the recently deceased scientist, and according to his theory there is an area in South America beyond the headwaters of the Rio Negro where Pleistocene life has survived.

Caxton, trusting the intelligence of his late friend, conceives a brilliant idea. Why not take Jean and the two suitors with him into the Pleistocene epoch and see what happens? The adequacy of the best proposed seems doubtful for obvious reasons, but the reader is not likely to quibble, for who would not be eager to peep through the dense curtain of the ages?

The party works its way, rather cautiously, one guess, into the unknown interior of South America somewhere in latitude 42 south, and one day, standing on the rim of a vast cuplike valley, they look down and see what appears to be the menagerie of an alcoholic team. Glyptodonts, mastodons, megatheriums, acrotheriums, saber-toothed tigers, and numerous other beasts grotesque and unrecognizable, grass there in that desolate morning of the world. (You see, it was, as they say in California, all a matter of climate.

Pleistocene Paradise

THE BEGINNING. By Alan Dutton. Dutton.

WHOSE imaginations have been stirred by the book of geology wherein is revealed the life of the prehistoric world, should read Alan Sullivan's "In the Beginning" with interest and some what profitable tale.

The scheme of the book is rather simple. Jean Caxon, daughter of a famous paleontologist, is experiencing considerable difficulty in choosing a husband. There are three ardent suitors, both rich and powerful, but they differ greatly in character and natural gifts, each, when viewed alone, seeming all that is desirable. Burden, the big game hunter, has mental and physical endowments of Jack. Sylvester, a relatively young man, is an intellectual. How does he choose?

Fate takes a hand. A letter comes to Caxon from a fellow paleontologist who has died since the letter was written. What Caxon reads there sounds goofy. A Pleistocene monster has been seen according to his theory there is an area in South America, beyond the headwaters of the Rio Negro where Pleistocene life has survived.

Caxon, trusting the intelligence of his late friend, conceives a brilliant idea. Why not take Jean and the two suitors with him into the Pleistocene epoch and see what happens? The adequacy of the proposed scheme seems doubtful for various reasons, but the reader is not likely to quibble, for who would not be eager to peep through the dense curtain of the ages? The party works its way, rather capriciously, one gathers, into the lower interior of South America somewhere in latitude 42 south; one day, standing on the rim of a vast, cuplike valley, they look down and see what appears to be the menagerie of an alcoholic dream. Glyptodonts, mastodons, megatheriums, arctotheriums, sabre-toothed tigers, and numerous other beasts grotesque and unrecognizable, graze there in that decayed morning of the world.

(You see, it was, as they say in California, all a matter of climate.

Owing to the topography of the country and a very special sort of gap in the Andes, through which a warm wind blew steadily, this Pleistocene Paradise had endured. Descending into the valley, the party finds the beasts mildly curious but not at all afraid of this intrusion of the twentieth century. The machauchenia even allow themselves to be used as pack animals. A machauchenia (called mach for short), is, as everybody ought to know, a sort of scrambled camel that simply doesn't stand to reason from any point of view, but he is evidently sorry about it and spends his life in melancholy brooding.

It's a scientific picnic until Burden, the big game hunter with a bullet head and a forehead that manifestly belongs to the top of it, begins to show signs of going barmy. He seems to remember all this, and now and then he mutters in some weird tongue that sounds like a convention of turkeys. As a matter of fact, he proves to be a hangerover from the Pleistocene epoch himself; for, when a tribe of Pleistocene men is discovered, all his twentieth century social duo peals off. He descends the party, takes a eating retreat, and by virtue of his relatively great size, becomes chief of this people whose clocks are all several millions of years behind Central standard time. Also, he takes a wild girl to his bosom and fights saber-toothed tigers for her in correct caveman fashion.

This settles Jean's difficulty, and there is the usual romantic climax with Sylvester. Some pity is expressed for poor Burden, who is thus deprived of the manifold blessings of civilization; but there are those readers who will wonder why. Unfortunately the party from the twentieth century inadvertently acquires the primitive tribe with fire, "the magic flower that renders its own summer," and as a result the whole valley is swept by a conflagration, the animals and the primitive fleeing together and tumbling over a precipice sufficiently awful to dispose of them quite thoroughly. And so it happens that if anyone should make the trip 200 miles east of the Pacific on parallel 42, south latitude, he will not come upon Pleistocene Paradise. However, Jean and Sylvester are at home to their friends in London.

SEAN O'CASEY, PLAYWRIGHT, WEDS ACTRESS IN LONDON

Ex-Bricklayer, Who Wrote "Juno and the Paycock," and Ellen Carey Married.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Sean O'Casey, who "quit laying bricks to write plays," was married today to Ellen Carey in a wedding costume as unconventional as the rest of his life. The playwright, whose "Juno and the Paycock" brought him fame and more money than he ever earned at bricklaying, led his bride to the altar of the Church of All Souls and the Redeemer in Chelsea in a lounge suit, a pull-over and a soft collar. The only concession he made to the occasion was in the matter of a hat. He laid aside his customary cap for a gray felt hat.

O'Casey arrived at the church 20 minutes ahead of time. He paced up and down nervously, awaiting Miss Carey's arrival. Miss Carey, an actress who has appeared in several of O'Casey's plays, was dressed in blue.

No one has volunteered as best man, but we are thinking of getting our old regiment, including second lieutenants, 14,287 friends, acquaintances, and unclassified, have called under various pretexts, on the lady in question. Their real motive was to see if the stone in the ring is genuine. We have been assured that the best month in which to get married is January, February—atop at December. We have been offered a sufficient number of wedding breakfasts to keep us in breakfasts until 1935. Lunch and dinner will come later. They generally are later than breakfast. But why continue? When a romantic illusion meets an incontrovertible fact, the illusion loses.

WELL, WHAT ABOUT BARBER SHOPS?

"The retail druggist of today has more power to influence public opinion than the old liquor regime ever had," he said, pointing out that the corner drug store has become the favorite meeting place of the public.—News Item.

Some people whistle to keep up their courage and others figure out that the schedule favors the home team.

Life's Minor Annoyances.

Of all the dreary gag-lines that wrinkle my sad brow, "The one that most needs gagging is that banal thing, 'and how!'"

A scientist claims to have discovered proof that Nebraska is the cradle of the human race. Then mankind has made considerable progress.

Tariff reciprocity, we glean from our careful reading, consists in doing to others as we would not care to have others do to us.

And to think that football was considered a complicated game even before the modern rule-making bodies went to work.

The way of the transgressor, in Indiana, is political.

According to Former Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, the withdrawal of Mr. Adoo has left the dry leadersless. Now all together, little children—whom does Mr. Meredith favor as a leader for the dry?

Add similes: As nonchalant as a man carrying a package that only looks like a quart of something.

(a roar)... he is working on that eye... he just one-twoed and his right caught Jack on the side of the head, bouncing his head against his shoulder... Jack has two bad eyes. There's the gong."

"Jack had ought to be covered up in that round till he gets himself set for his big sock," said Joe Bosh.

ST. LOUIS GUNMAN HELD IN DETROIT FOR TWO MURDERS

Tony Ortell Accused as Third Man in Poker Game Shooting of "Doggy" Snyder and James Elser.

Special to the Post-Dispatch, Sept. 23.—DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 23.—Tony Ortell was rated a good poker player and pistol shot in his St. Louis days, and police here began looking for him last March 17 when two of his friends from St. Louis were found shot to death in a downtown apartment, one with a bullet-trumped Queen of Spades up his sleeve.
But Ortell was not to be found in his Detroit haunts, and police concluded he had returned to St. Louis, whence he came a few years ago. He had left Detroit for a while, it seems, but he made the mistake of returning, and yesterday an alert detective arrested him when they chanced to pass on the street.
Ortell still was held for questioning today, but the questions had elicited no admissions. He denies any part in the murders or the poker game that preceded the shooting.

Ortell Has Long Record.
The prisoner is 41 years old, and has a record of many arrests and three convictions—for safe robberies and possession of burglars' tools. He is not to be confused with another Tony Ortell, a St. Louis racing expert.
The poker players who died at their game were John Elser, alias James Ellis, Missouri ex-convict, and Roy (Doggy) Snyder, who had served two terms in the St. Louis workhouse. Their bodies were found sprawled among poker cards and money in the apartment of Charles Becker, a bartender.

Up Elser's sleeve was the queen of spades, pierced by a bullet. At first it appeared the men had been killed for cheating, but further examination showed the winning hand was held by the supposed killer.
The hands were found intact on the table, in front of the dead players, with a handful of silver indicating the game was for small stakes. Elser had a straight, Snyder a full house and the third hand, which lay before an empty chair, contained four kings.

Four hats, four overcoats and a cap found in the room indicated the players were not the only ones who had been in the apartment.

Bartender Surrendered.
Becker, the tenant, was missing for several days. When he surrendered, he said he had admitted Snyder to the apartment on the day of the killing, and had then fallen asleep. He was awakened by pistol shots and saw a man, who had his back turned to Becker, firing away at Snyder and Elser.

Becker said he jumped from bed and ran out. He said he did not recognize the man with the pistol. Police were not satisfied with his story then—it may be that his memory has improved.

Alabama Lady Tells How Bad Spell Came on Her—Took Cardui and Regained Her Good Health.

Mrs. Lillian Rice, of Ashford, Ala., has told in the following statement how she was helped by taking Cardui:

"I was in a mighty bad way," said Mrs. Rice, "suffering with my back and sides, and so weak in my knees that I could hardly stand on my feet. This spell came on me gradually, till I found I was all run-down and not able to do my work."
"The care of my family was a great burden, for I was not equal to doing my household duties. I dragged around as best I could, suffering most of the time with my sides. My nerves were all upset. I was very restless."

"When I was a girl my mother had given me Cardui at home, so I thought I would take it this time. I sent for a bottle and took it for several weeks. I began to improve, and I felt so much better that I continued the medicine for quite a while."

"When I stopped taking Cardui I was in good health, and have continued to feel well."

Thousands of women have written that they have been helped back to good health by taking Cardui.

It has been in use for more than 50 years.

Obtainable at all druggists.

WHISKY FOUND AFTER COLLISION OF AUTOS

Police Seize 265 Pints Hidden Under Seats of Car That Hit Woman's Machine.

An inconsequential automobile accident, in which a machine was slightly damaged, led to the arrest of a man and the seizure of his machine, after police had found 265 pints of whisky in compartments beneath the front and rear seats, last night.

Miss Hazel Lamb of 4823 Hammett place, was driving her automobile across Natural Bridge avenue at Marcus avenue, when a machine driven by a man who said he is Leo Nolan of 5109 Delmar boulevard, crashed into her car. Nolan was assuring Miss Lamb he would assume all liability and pay for the slight damage done her machine, when policemen arrived.

Nolan gave the Delmar boulevard address but the officers noticed that his machine bore an Illinois license plate, a fact Nolan was unable to explain satisfactorily. He was taken to Page Boulevard Station, where his machine was searched and the liquor found. Police said that they also found automobile license plates of Michigan and Ohio.

The liquor containers bore labels reading "Old Log Cabin," and gave the name of a distillery at Montreal, Can. Charged with possession of liquor, Nolan was held for the Federal authorities for investigation.

Held for Operating Punchboard.

Investigating reports that messenger boys were among those said to have been "taking chances" on punchboards at the cigar store of Michael Dischlein in the Buder Building, detectives who went to the store yesterday afternoon arrested several of the boards. BARBARA FRIETCHIE'S HOME MECCA FOR TOURISTS

Furnishings Used by Maryland Civil War Heroine Restored to Place in House.

By the Associated Press. FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 23.—Although more than three score years have passed since the last shot of the Civil War was fired, the patriotic fervor of Barbara Fritchie is still fresh in the memories of her hometown folks.

The home of Maryland's Civil War heroine was restored this summer. Hundreds of tourists visited the quaint little brick structure, with its dormer windows and low-pitched ceilings.

Articles that tradition says were Dame Fritchie's property, form most of the furnishings of the house. These include her rocking chair, spinning wheel, clock, china-ware and even the flag that she is said to have waved in defiance at Stonewall Jackson's Southern troops.

SOME SUGGESTIONS ON JELLY MAKING

Many Housewives Find Jelly Making a Pleasant Duty to Put Up Fruit for Winter.

For the several years following the World War, jelly making was lost art.

However, the returned popularity of fruit marmalades, jellies and preserves has brought increased interest in home-made confections for winter use.

Jelly is easily made if the proper proportions and directions are carefully adhered to. Success comes more to the point than they are among the easiest of all fruits to put up. The following directions will be found to make delicious jellies.

Fruits which may be used in jelly-making are apples, cranberries, quince, currants, blackberries, raspberries, grapes and plums. In all cases two cups of sugar to each cup of juice makes a better jelly than the customary proportion of one cup of sugar to one cup of juice. Either proportion may be used in any of the following recipes.

Jelly Test: At end of time given in recipe, pour one-half teaspoon of jelly syrup on a very cold saucer. Let it stand in a cool place for a minute. If it jells, the mixture is done. If not continue cooking and repeat test.

Quick Grape Jelly.
Grapes are the most popular fruit for jelling. To make it, wash grapes that are not over-ripe, remove stems and wash the fruit. Put prepared grapes into a preserving kettle. Heat to boiling point and boil five minutes. Strain through a coarse strainer and then allow fruit to drip through a double thickness of cheesecloth or a jelly bag. Measure the juice thus obtained and for every three cups of juice use two cups of sugar. This proportion is nearly all cases makes a better jelly than the old time proportion of one cup of sugar to one cup of juice. Bring the juice to boiling point and let boil five minutes. Then add sugar, boil three minutes and pour into glasses. Pack in a sunny window and let stand twenty-four hours. Cover and keep in a cool, dry place.

Glorified Quince Jelly.
Take twelve quinces, twelve apples, two cups grapes and one quart cranberries.
Wash and drain quince and apples; cut into small pieces without peeling. Wash cranberries and grapes. Crush grapes in bottom of kettle; add cranberries, quince and apples, and cover with water. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil gently until fruit becomes soft. Drain in jelly bag through double thickness of cheesecloth; measure juice and boil five minutes. # The Kohn STORES

Milk-Fed Spring Chickens

SCIENCE has even invaded the chicken dressing industry and today we are able to sell in the Kohn Store, milk-fed, dry-picked chickens, especially prepared here in our city in the most modern equipped and sanitary plant. Our Jersey Brand genuine milk-fed, dry-picked chickens are fed with oatmeal, cornmeal and buttermilk from eight to twelve days and necessary preparations are made before dressing to see that no feed is left in the crop. After dressing, the birds are hung up on racks and immediately taken into refrigerating rooms, where, by cool air process, the animal heat is extracted. The milk feeding and dry methods of dressing eliminate the water-soaked condition of the birds, retain the original sweet flavor of the chicken and make for superior quality and tenderness.

The Kohn Stores are always endeavoring to give the public better food.

HOW TO COOK SPARRERIBS

These Pork Products Are Nice When Made Into Combination Dishes.

Have the butcher crack the spareribs twice crosswise, and buy five pounds for a family of five. Use an apple stuffing, and fold the ends of the spareribs over the dressing and skewer them into place. Place the meat in roasting pan, add one-half cup boiling water, cover and roast at least 20 minutes to the pound. Season after first hour of cooking.

Savory Spareribs.
Roast spareribs one hour. Season them. Place small, whole potatoes or quarters of larger ones, and quarters' cooking apples on top of the roast and bake another hour.

AN ATTRACTIVE TRIO OF SAVORY SALADS

These Salads Will Offer Invaluable Appeals to Jaded Appetites.

To make the celery jelly salad you will need a pint of cut-up celery, including a few leaves. Simmer this in two and a half cups of water with one onion slice, a quarter of a bay leaf and a slice of carrot. Simmer for three-quarters of an hour slowly, so that it will not evaporate much, for you will want about a pint liquid at the end. Add a little water if needed to make up for evaporation. Strain thick and add a tablespoon of granulated gelatin dissolved in cold water, a tablespoon of lemon juice and a scant half teaspoon of sugar. Set aside to cool and when slightly solidified add a cup of white celery stalk cut into small dice. Turn into individual molds and aside to harden in a cool place. Turn out on lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Frozen Vegetable Salad.
One cup tomatoes, one-half cup pimientos, one-half cup green peas, one-half cup chopped green beans, two tablespoons chopped green peas, two teaspoons horseradish and one-half teaspoon salt.

Cook the tomatoes, onion, pimientos and peppers together five minutes. Have ready the vegetable mixture. Mix together the tomato mixture, which has been soaked in a quarter cup of cold water, the vegetable mixture and the horseradish and salt. Freeze in ice and mold. Serve in slices with mayonnaise dressing.

Tomato Jelly Salad.
Soak a tablespoon of granulated gelatin in a quarter cup of cold water and while this is soaking together in a saucepan two cups strained tomato, a tablespoon of minced onion, a quarter of a cup of vinegar and two tablespoons of sugar with a few drops of lemon juice. Simmer this for a quarter of an hour and then add the tomato and stir until dissolved. Pour into individual molds and turn into a cold place until wanted and then turn out on lettuce leaves and dress with a little mayonnaise dressing.

LARDED BEEF TENDERLOIN.
Trim, wash and wipe tenderloin dry. Cut pork into long strips about one-fourth inch wide and one-half inch thick. With sharp knife cut two rows of small slits through center of tenderloin, about one inch apart. Insert strips of pork into slits, bringing the across top of tenderloin as in last shoe. Place in hot oven (425 degrees) for twenty minutes; then reduce heat to moderate (375 degrees) for forty-five minutes longer. Remove from oven, sprinkle with salt and pepper and place on hot platter. Stir flour into fat remaining in pan and when browned add water slowly, stirring constantly. Add mushrooms and simmer gently five minutes, or until mushrooms are heated through. Then pour over tenderloin and serve.

Chief of Police Gerk yesterday received a little gold badge upon which is inscribed, "Commissioner of Police, St. Louis," which Gerk thinks is a relic sufficiently ancient to justify his giving it to the Missouri Historical Society. The badge comes from the estate of Frank Kellogg, a former St. Louisian, who died in New York a year ago.

LAUGHING AROUND THE WORLD

with IRVIN S. COBB

TAKING NO BLAME FOR OTHERS' FAULTS.

In a certain Southern State, a newly elected Magistrate, trying a case. The hearing was complicated by a great deal of cross-talking, back and forth, between the opposing attorneys, jectations, motions, interruptions were flying in the air through the fast.

The Magistrate himself was sure of his own ground and did not intend to allow that to be discovered by those in attendance or by the lawyers.

A stage was reached where it appeared to be leaning against the argument being advanced by the attorney on the floor. The latter noting it, said:

"Your Honor, if you will allow me, I shall be glad to read you what the United States Supreme Court has to say on this very question."

"Never mind, sir," stated the Magistrate. "I am not responsible for the errors of the United States Supreme Court."

MEDITATIONS —OF A— MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

MANKIND—AND UNKIND.

Man may have been made in the image of the Lord—but since he has never LOOKED the same.

Love may be blind; but if men's collars continue getting lower and women continue cropping their hair closer and closer, they will have to be a constitutional amendment making love and marriage compulsory.

A man's "grouch" is just his inarticulate way of making his disapproval felt when he hasn't the nerve to express it.

When a man catches a woman in negligee, he is always tempted to kiss her; but when a woman catches a glimpse of her husband with a collar off, his hair sticking up and his feet bare, she can only close her eyes and try to remember how GOOD he is to her!

Woman may shingle her hair, wear knickers, puff cigarettes and wear jewelry; but there never will be any real equality between the sexes until she can be frankly and cheerfully FAT and middle-aged, and still feel as self-complacent about her charms as a man does.

When a man kisses you slowly and tenderly, it may mean that he is in love; but when he kisses you suddenly and rapturously, it may mean only that you happened to be near when he FELT like kissing somebody.

A man always thinks that he wants a woman to be "soothing;" as soon as she becomes a sedative in his life, he starts looking for a tonic or a stimulant.

A woman does not mind her husband's good-by kiss at the station being perfunctory; but when his welcoming kiss has "a new flavor" that she fails to recognize, it starts her wondering.

When a woman falls in love with a man, he wonders why God made him so dangerous and irresistible, instead of wondering why he made women such blind, soft, impressionable fools.

Home-cooking is no longer guaranteed to hold a man against the temptations of apple-sauce, lip-rouge and a new brand of perfume.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Mother Brown Misses Things

It was a cold, until 'tis dead. Mother Brown's head.

—Old Mother Nature.

Little Cubby, the mischievous little Bear, twinkled when he discovered two towels which Mother Brown had left on the grass.

"Just what I want," said Cubby. "Those towels will make a very nice bed." He went by a corner and dragged them under the porch and hid them.

That big hole he had dug, he went back for the other towel. He did the same thing with that. He tried curling up on them and how they felt. "They are just what I want," said he. "I won't let them go."

He went Cubby again and hid all around the farm yard. There was nothing that he could find to make a bed with, so he had to be satisfied with those towels. After a while he gave up and climbed back up the favorite tree, and that is where he was when Farmer Brown's Boy and Farmer Brown came from the cornfield. They noticed if he had remained up all day, and when they reached the house they chided Mother Brown for having fed Cubby.

"I'll never catch him if you keep going to feed him," declared Mother Brown's Boy. Then he went out and tried to induce Cubby to come down. But of course he did nothing of the kind. When he was well off and responded to keep that way. So he wouldn't come down.

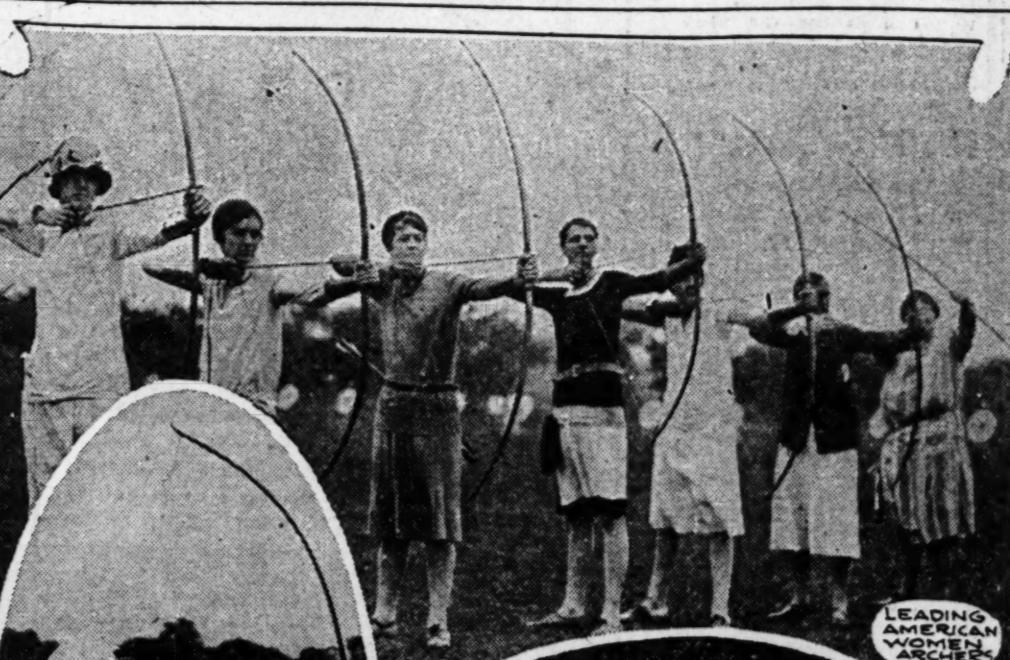

He was after supper that Mother Brown went out to get her towels. Of course there were no towels. When she went back to the house and asked the others if they had caught them in and of course they said "No." Mother Brown decided finally that she must have lost those towels in and forgotten them, and then she gave it no further thought.

It was two or three days later that Mother Brown missed an old towel of carpet. It was just a small one which she had hung over the back of a chair. When she went to get it there was no carpet there. She was queer. Who could have taken that carpet? Farmer Brown went along just then and she told him if he had seen that towel.

"It was hanging there when I saw it," said Mother Brown. "I can't imagine what anybody would want of an old piece of carpet."

Farmer Brown's Boy said he knew nothing about that piece of carpet, and so the disappearance remained a mystery. To this day the mystery of an old towel that had been hanging in the back of a chair and low she found no trace of any of them. It was very provoking and decided that she would find out who had taken it. It looked very much like there were a thief of some kind hanging around, though what thief could want of a piece of old carpet, a doormat, an apron and a pair of towels was more than

ARCHERY GAINS FAVOR OF AMERICAN WOMEN

LEADING AMERICAN ARCHERS.

LADY M. HAMILTON RUSSELL.

They Have Given It a Place in Amateur Sports and Are Taking Part in Competitions for Bow-and-Arrow Championships.

ARCHERY, as ancient as war and the chase, has come into a real place in amateur sports in this country. It has had a rating in England and both men and women have been following it for years. Women will make it popular in America, if its vogue is to spread as it now seems likely. At a recent championship archery tournament on Soldiers' Field, Harvard University, were women from Los Angeles, Cal.; Pinehurst, N. C.; Scarsdale, N. Y.; New York City and Cotuit, Roslindale and Newton, Mass. The Los Angeles entrant, Mrs. Robert Johnson, led at the targets. Mrs. M. A. Owens of Scarsdale and Miss Frances Thord-Gray, the New York contenders, gave fine accounts of themselves.

Many clubs have kept archery going in this country for 40 years or more. The membership of these comes from both sexes, but the men have usually figured in the spectacular contests. The showing of the women this summer has changed all that and from now on archery will share with tennis and golf as a sport for women.

One of the outstanding features of the national tournament at Soldiers' Field was the exhibition of Earl B. Powell of Dayton, O., who made use of his 150-pound bow. Powell claims that he is the only archer in either England or America who can draw this bow. He shoots a bodkin-tipped arrow which penetrates a regulation trench helmet at 20 yards.

Archery in England has its picturesque side. The men who engage in the competitions wear club uniforms of distinctive type and the women make use of trappings that serve as aids to the game as well as ornamentation. Many women members of the nobility engage in contests and Lady M. Hamilton-Russell is one of the most devoted followers of the sport.

Palm Beach and Pinehurst and other American winter resorts showed much interest in archery this year and at some of the summer places it enlisted enthusiastic followers. That it is not a game of seasons forecasts a growing popularity.

How to Dress Sonny And Sister for School

By Emilie Hoffman.

A MOTHER complains that her 7-year-old daughter "is becoming dreadfully fussy about her school clothes." The mother adds, "she does not want to wear faded frocks to school. She seems to feel quite badly over it and actually cries about it. Would you advise me to give in to her? She has been wearing these dresses all summer, and I see no reason why she cannot wear them to school. It seems foolish to me that children dress up so for school."

I wonder whether this mother would appear among her circle of friends in a faded frock? The desire to look well is by no means foolish. The fact that the child wore the dresses all summer shows she is not over vain. Why not let her wear nice, fresh-looking frocks to school and replace these with the faded dresses when she reaches home after school? Wise mothers follow this custom with their boys and girls, for they know that being well dressed gives a child poise and efficiency, and this means progress in class standing.

Well dressed does not mean elaborate frocks and suits. This would make a child conspicuous and self-conscious, and this would prove a handicap in school progress.

Even kindergartens will notice and resent any conspicuous features in their attire. For instance, a 5-year-old amused the family by firmly refusing to wear "demissy collars to school." He had an understanding mother, so he was permitted to discard the objectionable neck adornment.

A 10-year-old lad surprised his mother when she said, "I feel so old-fashioned in school among the other fellows. I'm the only one in my class that doesn't wear plus four trousers." He, too, had a wise mother, so after that he wore the plus-fours to school and the others were relegated to after-school wear.

In one family there were daily stormy scenes because the 8-year-old son objected to wearing socks to school and his mother insisted upon his wearing them, even though he was the only lad in his grade who did not wear stockings. The mother did not realize the mental disturbance her young son was undergoing and that it was detracting from his class efficiency. She did not understand that the taunts of his schoolmates made the school environment decidedly unpleasant for her boy.

Clothes play a big role in the well-being of children and are quite as important to boys as they are to girls. So do not handicap the school child by dressing him or her in such a manner that they will attract attention and feel self-conscious or conspicuous.

Wheat Tassels Wedding Omen

MUSKHAM, England.

WHEN Mrs. Francis Wood was returning from her wedding some wheat tassels fell from a cart which passed by.

"Keep them!" urged a member of the wedding party. "Then you will never want for bread."

Mrs. Wood and her husband celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary lately, and got a telegram of congratulation from King George. During the merry-making Mrs. Wood remembered the wheat tassels.

"I have always kept them," she said, "and I have never wanted for bread."

The BENSON MURDER CASE

S.S. VAN DINE © CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

A woman's gloves and handbag are found at the scene of the murder. Upstairs, in his bedroom, are found Benson's false teeth and toupee. A policeman reports having seen a big gray automobile outside Benson's house at midnight. Mrs. Platz hesitates when Vance asks her whether Benson had had any visitors the evening of the crime, then says he had not.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

MRS. PLATZ, it was learned, had been born in a small Pennsylvania town of German parents both of whom were dead; and had been a widow for over 15 years.

Before coming to Benson, she had been with one family for 12 years, and had left the position only because her mistress had given up housekeeping and moved into a hotel. Her former employer, when questioned, said she thought there had been a daughter, but had never seen the child, and knew nothing of it. In these facts there was nothing to take hold of, and Markham had merely filed the report as a matter of form.

Heath had instigated a city-wide search for the gray Cadillac, although he had little faith in its direct connection with the crime; and in this the newspapers helped considerably by the extensive advertising given the car.

One curious fact developed that fired the police with the hope that the Cadillac might indeed hold some clue to the mystery. A street cleaner, having read or heard about the fishing-tackle in the machine, reported the finding of two jointed fishing-rods, in good condition, at the side of one of the drives in Central Park near Columbus Circle.

The question was: were the rods part of the equipment? Patrolman McLaughlin had seen in the Cadillac? The owner of the car might conceivably have thrown them away in his flight; but, on the other hand, they might have been lost by someone else while driving through the park.

No further information was forthcoming, and on the morning of the day following the discovery of the crime the case, so far as any definite progress toward a solution was concerned, had taken no perceptible forward step.

That morning, however, had sent Currie out to buy him every available newspaper; and he had spent over an hour perusing the various accounts of the crime. It was unusual for him to glance at a newspaper, even casually, and I could not refrain from expressing my amazement at his sudden interest in a subject so entirely outside his normal routine.

"No, Van, old dear," he explained languidly, "I am not becoming sentimental or even human, as that word is erroneously used today. I cannot say with Terrence, 'Homo sum, humani nihil a me alienum puto,' because I regard most things that are called human as decidedly alien to myself. But y' know, this tummy in crime, has proved rather interesting, or, as the magazine writers say, intriguing—beastly word! . . . Van, you really should read this precious interview with Seaght, Heath. He takes an entire column to say 'I know nothing.' A priceless find! I'm becoming positively fond of him."

"It may be," I suggested, "that Heath is keeping his true knowledge from the papers, as a bit of tactical diplomacy."

"No," Vance returned, with a twinkle in his eye, "no man has so little vanity that he would deliberately reveal himself to the world as a creature with no perceptible powers of human reasoning—as he does in all these morning journals—for the mere sake of bringing one murderer to justice. That would be martyrdom gone mad."

"Markham, at any rate, may know or suspect something that hasn't been revealed," I said.

"That's not impossible," he admitted. "He has kept himself modestly in the background in all this journalistic palaver. Suppose we look into the matter more thoroughly—eh, what?"

Going to the telephone he called the District Attorney's office, and I heard him make an appointment with Markham for lunch at the Stuyvesant Club.

I heard him make an appointment with Markham for lunch at the Stuyvesant Club.

"What about that Nadelmann statuette at Stieglitz's?" I asked, remembering the reason for my presence at Vance's that morning.

"I ain't in the mood for Greek simplifications today," he answered, turning again to his newspapers.

To say that I was surprised at his attitude is to express it mildly. In all my association with him I had never known him to forgo his enthusiasm for art in favor of any other diversion; and heretofore anything pertaining to the law and its operations had failed to interest him.

I realized, therefore, that something of an unusual nature was at work in his brain, and I refrained from further comment.

Markham was a little late for the appointment at the club, and Vance and I were already at our favorite corner table when he arrived.

"Well, my good Lycurgus," Vance greeted him, "aside from the fact that several new and significant clues have been unearthed and that the public may expect important developments in the very near future, and all that sort of thing, how are things really going?"

"I see you have been reading the newspapers. What do you think of the accounts?"

"Typical, no doubt," replied Vance. "They carefully and painstakingly omit nothing but the essentials."

"In my foolish amateur way," said Vance, "I looked upon dear Alvin's toupee as a rather conspicuous essential, don't y' know?"

"Benson, at any rate, regarded it in that light, I imagine. . . . Anything else?"

"Well, there was the collar and the tie on the chiftonier."

"And," added Markham chaffingly, "don't overlook the false teeth in the tumbler."

"You're positively comical!" Vance exclaimed. "Yes, they, too, were an essential of the situation. And I'll warrant the incomparable Heath didn't even notice them. But the other Aristotles present were equally sketchy in their observations."

"You weren't particularly impressed by the investigation yesterday, I take it," said Markham.

"On the contrary," Vance assured him. "I was impressed to the point of stupefaction. The whole proceedings constituted a masterpiece of absurdity. Everything relevant was sublimely ignored. There were at least a dozen points of departure, all leading in the same direction, but not one of them apparently was even noticed by any of the officiating pourparleurs. Everybody was too busy at such silly occupations as looking for cigarette ends and inspecting the freewheel at the windows—those grilles, by the way, were rather attractive—Florentine design."

d'Instruction and chivvy her most horribly, what?"

"I shall certainly question her, if that's what you mean."

"Vance, who had lived many years in England, frequently said 'ain't'—a contraction which is regarded there more leniently than in this country. He also pronounced ate as if it were spelled it; and I cannot remember his ever using the word 'stomach' or 'bug,' both of which come under the social ban in England."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

TRUE WISDOM.

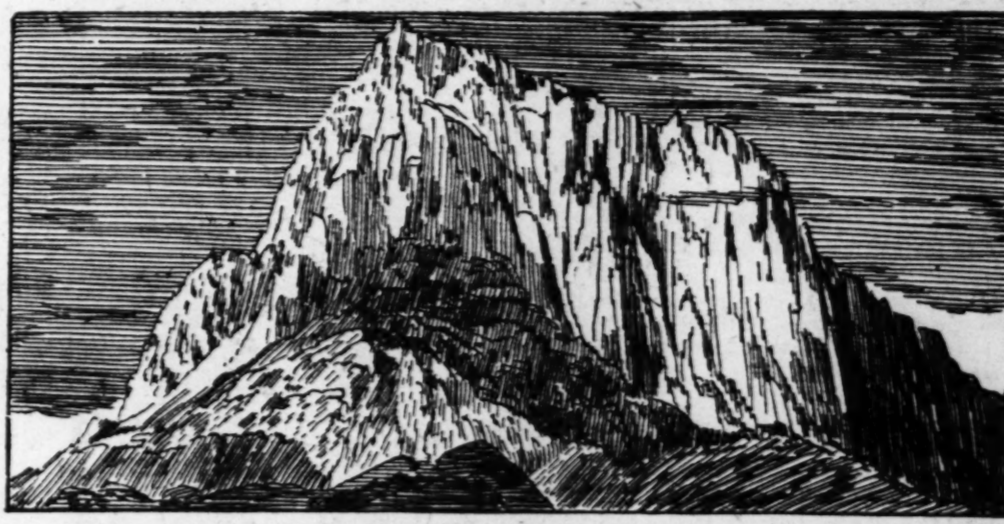

TRUE wisdom—would you grasp it? Then think less about the world of men, the round of ruthless greed and hate, the reign of cruelty and waste! Think less of what man likes to hold as weighing most: brief fame, bright gold; how many times has earth's applause rung loudly out for worthless cause! How many times has hard won gold brought envy, strife and cares untold! True wisdom—learn it from the lark whose song is fired from love's own spark. Learn it from all sweet, simple things, the daily round of living, brings for high or humble destinies find all their power lies in these: the quiet hours when love is near, the earnest toil and friendly cheer. True wisdom—would you gain the prize? Forget what earth calls being wise!

The Greatest Story in the World—By Kor

The Bible in Pictures

And Jethro said unto Moses, I thy father-in-law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her. And Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, and did obeisance, and kissed him; and they asked each other of their welfare; and they came into the tent. And Moses told his father-in-law all that the Lord had done unto Pharaoh and to the Egyptians for Israel's sake, and all the travail that had come upon them by the way, and how the Lord delivered them. And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodness which the Lord had done to Israel, whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.
